Women Past Fifty.
A Robot Pilot.
The Street's Merriest Day.
Improving Sailors' Caps.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THANKS TO Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, girls and women UNEMPLOYED AND UNMARRIED, from 16 to 45 years of age, will have an opportunity to enter camps and earn a living until times improve.

Some women who applied, past 50 and ineligible, "wept bitterly." For women past fifty the world does the least and should do the most.

COMMANDER FRANK HAWKS, flying from Los Angeles to New York, "non-stop," sat quietly, hands idle, watching a "robot pilot" run the machine.

Twenty-five years ago few would believe that airships could ever really fly.

Suppose you had suggested that they would fly, piloted and controlled by a "robot," or artificial man. What would have been said?

YESTERDAY WAS the "maddest, merriest day of all the glad new year," 1933, in Wall street. Stocks rose from one to ten dollars a share.

"Big steel" really began to be big once more, passing $54 a share. Only a little while ago, poor old "big steel" was drifting around $23 a share, and lower. It is the solemn truth that "hope is stronger than memory."

AND THINK of the happy, smiling faces of brokers, when they saw stocks selling for a while at 3,000,000 shares an hour, with total sales for the day 6,500,000 shares.

Sorrow is in the hearts of those that sold their stock exchange seats too cheap, and hope is reborn for those that predicted seats at $1,000,000 each.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS says:

"The Navy Department has ordered greater 'rake' and 'flare' in enlisted men's caps."

They must have the "required rake in the crown," and the sides must be "padded, to give the required flare."

All this is intensely satisfactory. Words cannot express our joy, learning that our enlisted navy men will no longer wear caps which lack rake and flare.

That being settled, perhaps those in charge of government defense will look into the matter of airplanes, and get a little more "rake" in that direction. That would be appreciated.

VARIOUS STRAWS tell you that the wind of change is blowing away depression. Lawrence P. Fisher, vice president of General Motors, and head of the Cadillac Company, announces that Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., head of General Motors, has authorized a 5 per cent wage increase, which affects 100,000 employes of the company.

This partial restoration of previous wage reductions will be welcome to the men. It is to be hoped that the example set by Mr. Sloan, in General Motors, will be followed by other industrial concerns wherever earnings make it possible.

ALL NEWSPAPER men and the whole country will learn, with regret, of the very serious illness of Cyrus H. K. Curtis, who is eighty-three years old, and said to be "very ill."

Mr. Curtis is suffering from the after effects of a severe heart attack, which occurred a year ago. His has been a long, honorable life of useful work. He has made many friends, no enemies.

IN THE death house of Sing Sing and other prisons, when the zero hour comes, the condemned man may order anything he wants to eat. It was the turn of William H. Jackson, a forty-year-old Negro from Niagara Falls, yesterday morning, and he said:

"Make it a triple steak, warden. It's my last one."

He ate all of the triple steak, with several plates of "French fried potatoes," but never digested them. Guards fastened him to the electric chair. The current, which no man understands, sent him to the place about which no man knows anything.

Different men die in different ways.

MR. HITLER advanced new ideas. Women must stay in the home, to attend to things there. They must not earn a living for themselves, as they have been doing, often competing with men.

Some men will sympathize with that, but not the best men. The best will agree that a woman has a right to do exactly as she pleases, but hope that she will marry, create beautiful children, and be happy.

MR. HITLER also declares that he will allow no work to be done by machinery, if it can be done by hand.

Industrialists competing with German industry will be pleased with that. Manpower, without the aid of German industrial and mechanical genius, would never have built up Germany's interests and exports.

VOLPE HELD IN BAN-BOX BOMBING

Louis 'Brought In' on Racket Warfare Cleanup Order

Mayor John S. Herron's order to get the big shots in the racket warfare and bombings today had resulted in the arrest of Louis Volpe, one of the few surviving members of the Wilmerding clan.

Volpe, arrested by Detective Albert Schreckengost, was held without bail in Central Police Station on a suspicion person charge.

Police said he was arrested in connection with the investigation of the bombing of the Ban-Box, East Liberty dance hall, last Monday night. Previously police had arrested James Terenzio, who, police said, was a friend and business associate of Volpe.

ARRESTS NUMEROUS

Louis Volpe has been arrested numerous times in connection with rackets and other law violations.

He was serving a term in the Allegheny County jail for a liquor law violation when his three brothers, Johnny, Jim and Arthur Volpe were "bumped off" in Wylie avenue last summer.

Early this year with his brothers, Guy and Joe, he was arrested by state troopers on a surety of the peace charge growing out of their alleged beating of a tinsmith and threatening his family when he refused to vacate his shop and home so liquor could be stored there.

Three of the four suspects taken in the second day of the drive by

MAN, GIRL DIE IN CAR PLUNGE

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 3.—(AP.)—A man and a girl were killed today when an automobile shot over a steep embankment on Ligonier Mountain.

The victims were Rose Nitka, 21, and George Knox, 33, both of Latrobe.

Knox, driving, evidently lost control on a grade. A passing motorist found the bodies.

Ligonier police said Knox was driving his own machine, although he was employed as chauffeur for a Latrobe family.

Speed Mark Claimed By Italian Aviator

ROME, June 3.—(AP.)—An unofficial air speed record at an average of 440 miles an hour was claimed today by Warrant Officer Francesco Agello, who flew 426½ miles an hour April 10 and who is preparing for an official attempt soon in his famous Red Bullet.

Firemen Battle Glass Tank Leak

Two South Side engine companies poured water on the glass tanks of the United States Glass Company several hours today when one of them sprang a leak at the South Tenth street plant. Loss was estimated at $1,000.

The Effect of Moving Pictures On Public Morals

THE REPORT of the Motion Picture Research Council reflects an extremely conscientious effort to solve the moral and social problems of the moving picture and to direct this enormously influential educational factor into directions of greatest good to the community.

The powerful formative effect of moving pictures upon the character and mental conceptions of children is thoughtfully considered.

But in this discussion it must fully be realized that moving pictures have developed beyond the point when they were made chiefly for the entertainment and patronage of the young. The moving picture, like the stage, today addresses itself to the adult.

If parents want to take their children to a moving picture, they should make inquiry beforehand as to whether the picture is suitable for children.

They would do this much in every instance with regard to a theatrical play; they would be similarly careful about the character of a book they might give their children to read.

They should be as discriminating with regard to the screen.

IN SOME cities like Chicago the censors themselves designate certain pictures as fit for children and others as fit only for adults.

But it is undoubtedly better for parents to take the trouble to make their own decisions on such matters, and surely to consider carefully the character of the pictures they want their children to see.

However, apart from the vital question of what the child should see, there is the equally vital question of what the adult should see and should properly enjoy and encourage.

Sad to say there has been a certain definite degeneracy in the stage of late years.

And apparently there has been a corresponding degeneracy in literature.

There is a tendency for this degeneracy to affect moving pictures; but apparently moving pictures have been kept in the main on a higher plane of morals than the stage or the average book of fiction.

Perhaps this has been due to censorship, although it must be confessed that censorship as a rule has not been particularly conscientious or intelligent.

IT OPERATES generally by rule and routine, on the one hand, or by personal prejudice on the other and varies to such a degree in different states that moving picture producers hardly know what to do to satisfy the contradictory requirements of the censors; consequently producers are disposed very largely to make their pictures regardless of the censors and let the censors of each state mutilate the productions as their fancy dictates.

The censorship would be much more effective for good if it were unified or at least harmonized—if there were perhaps federal censorship or at least an agreement among the censor boards of the different states as to what was permissible in pictures, and what objectionable.

There must be a recognition of the obvious fact

MATTERN HOPS FOR EUROPE

Young Flier Off 'Solo' On First Leg of World Tour

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP.)—An aerial jack-of-all-work, with six oranges in his pocket and a grin on his lips, hopped off from Floyd Bennett Field today in a single-handed try at the globe-girdling record.

Lieut. Mattern

James Joseph Mattern, 28, of San Angelo, Tex., who has done all kinds of flying chores, from toting iced meats to Mexico to hopping the Atlantic, roared down the mile-long runway in his Century of Progress and got away at 5:20 a.m. (Pittsburgh time).

The record, 8 days 7 hours and 51 minutes, was set two years ago by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

FIRST STOP IN DOUBT

As to Mattern's first stop on the terrific grind, there were several versions and much confusion. First he was represented as hoping to get to Moscow without a stop. Later it was said that Ber-

MORGAN TAKES 25 PER CENT

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—J. Pierpont Morgan has an interest of slightly less than 25 per cent in the profits of the giant international banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., International News Service learned today.

The son of the founder of the House of Morgan—now its titular head—invested half of the approximately $50,000,000 capital with which the present partnership was launched on March 31, 1916. He then acquired a 25 per cent interest in all profits—and an equal liability for all losses.

INTEREST SHRINKS

His interest shrank fractionally since then, as the partnership was expanded to take in younger men.

The interests of other partners slide down the scale to 1 per cent. None of the others has as much as a 20 per cent interest.

This interest has netted "J. P." millions of dollars in profits through the intervening years. Under his own rule to withhold

LEADERS MADE 'MESS'-ICKES

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 3.—Confessing that present day leaders had made "a mess of things," Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, in an address at the Washington and Jefferson College commencement called on the youth of the country today to aid in building a new social order.

He told the students they would not enter a happy, prosperous world, but one in the birth throes of a new social order, and added:

"Yours will be the rare privilege of helping to build this new order. What more inspiring prospect would any man of courage and vision ask?"

The secretary said men of his generation were speaking to youth humbly confessing "that we have made a mess of things." He said they had squandered their heritage and had believed wealth was the aim and end of existence.

He said:

"The call has come to you to fall into line and march forward to support troops that have been retreating before the enemy. My generation needs your help."

POSTMASTER SEES G.O.P. DESERTION

Time Ripe to Fight For State Control, He Declares

A roused, fighting Democratic party in Pennsylvania, strengthened by thousands of former Republican voters, was predicted today by Postmaster General James A. Farley here as the guest of party leaders.

The six-foot chairman of the Democratic National Committee and right hand man of President Roosevelt, was to dedicate a new postoffice at Grove City and to be honor guest and speaker at a Democratic rally in William Penn Hotel tonight.

REAL OPPORTUNITY

On the outlook in this traditionally rock-ribbed Republican commonwealth, Farley said:

"A real opportunity exists to build up a strong Democratic party in Pennsylvania. The Democratic party is now in power and it looks like it would continue in power for many years to come.

"The record of the national administration will attract thousands of Republicans who were disappointed with Republican rule and who are challenged today by results of Democratic control of the government."

Farley emphasized that he believes in brushing elbows with the party workers. He said:

"It is the duty of the chairman of the National Committee to visit every part of the country and get acquainted with the workers.

"As state chairman in New York I visited every county. As national chairman I expect to visit every state for personal contact with the local men."

GREETED AT STATION

Farley was met at the East Liberty Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad by local Democratic leaders and was taken to the home of M. L. Benedum, Fifth and South Highland avenue, for breakfast.

It was Benedum who swung from Hoover to Roosevelt at the election last fall and was credited with part of the success of the

Roosevelt's Wife Lands Here Sunday

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President of the United States, was expected to change planes in Pittsburgh tomorrow while en route to Los Angeles to visit her son, Elliott, who recently took a position with a western airlines company.

She planned to leave Washington at 10 a. m. tomorrow and was expected at the County Airport shortly after noon.

'Iron Jaw' Circus Girl Hurt in Fall

GENEVA, N. Y., June 3.—(AP.)—Lillian Burslem, circus aerial performer, suffered a broken right leg and wrist in a 30-foot fall from the top of the tent yesterday.

She was doing an iron jaw act when she lost her grip on the rope and dropped.

Kin Defies Ex-Kaiser, Weds 'Commoner'

BONN, Germany, June 3.—(AP.)—Hallowed Hohenzollern tradition, a rigid "House Law" since the Fifteenth century, was broken today by the marriage of former Prince Wilhelm of Prussia to Dorothea von Salviati, a vivacious 25-year-old girl of "unequal" birth.

The Prince, who will be 27 July 4, once was in line for the German throne but by the marriage he may forfeit all his chances if the dynasty should return to power.

The civil ceremony was performed in the City Hall this morning in the presence of two witnesses, the bride's brother, Col. von Salviati, and one of the bridegroom's friends. The religious ceremony followed at the Castle Church and was of the simplest character with a company of Steelhelmeters forming a guard of honor.

The Former Kaiser Wilhelm, feeling that his grandson had violated a pledge he assumed on attaining his majority, requested members of the royal family to stay away from the wedding.

Pinchot Signs Bill For Juvenile Court

A Juvenile Court judgeship was created in Allegheny County today when Gov. Pinchot signed the bill providing the new post on the county bench. Heretofore juvenile cases have been disposed of by the County Court, with none of the judges assigned especially to such cases. Social agencies claimed a judge qualified to devote his entire attention to child problems was necessary. The judge will be elected in November to take office January 1.

Muldoon, Sportsman, Dies at 88

The veteran sportsman, a noted expert on health methods, originator of the "health farm idea" and intimate of leading sports figures for half a century, succumbed shortly before 5 a. m. at his estate here.

Oil City Girl Dies, 5 Injured in Crash

OIL CITY, Pa., June 3.—(AP.)—Inez Moate, 17, was killed and five others are in a hospital, injured in an automobile accident. Their car left the road, zig-zagged 1,000 feet and struck a culvert.

Roosevelt Repeal Plea To States Expected

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt is expected by Democratic leaders to make a direct appeal to the states to ratify the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Members of Congress from doubtful and dry states have urged the Chief Executive to make a personal call for action, and they have gained the impression that he will do so shortly.

His appeal, these members said, would be based upon the pledges of President and party during the campaign, and would stress the importance, already mentioned by the President in a message to Congress, of obtaining additional federal revenue from liquor taxes.

Mr. Roosevelt had obtained a provision in the tax program of the industrial recovery bill permitting him to remove the increased levies in the event of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Furthermore, Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has launched a party drive for repeal.

PINCHOT VETO KILLS STATE PROBE OF PUBLIC UTILITIES

ACTION HALTING SENATE QUIZ SURPRISE

Governor Hurls Charge Of 'Falsehood' at Committee

HARRISBURG, June 3.—(AP.)—An implacable foe of public utilities, Gov. Pinchot today is in the somewhat paradoxical position of having stopped a Legislative investigation of them.

In a surprise exercise of his veto, he killed a resolution continuing the work of the Senate Utilities Investigating Committee yesterday and left that body financially embarrassed because the resolution appropriated $100,000 for the cost of inquiry.

Charging the seven members of the committee with "subscribing to a falsehood respecting its work," the Governor said he could see "no advantage for squandering $100,000 or any part of it on something which will bring no benefits whatever to the people of the state.

COMMITTEE 'UP IN AIR'

His action left the committee with approximately $50,000 in outstanding obligations which it cannot pay. The $100,000 appropriation, voted by the 1932 special session of the Legislature, was lapsed by a bill the Governor signed recently, although $10,000 of the money already had been spent.

The veto was more or less unexpected because the Governor had told the committee last March, after its members had promised a thorough and impartial inquiry, that he would sign the resolution.

CHARGES FALSEHOOD

Pinchot's charge against the committee of "subscribing to a falsehood" was based on the fact that the members voted for the Parkinson resolution which placed the State Senate on record as opposed to acting on confirmation of Public Service Commissioners until the investigation was completed.

A quarrel with Dr. Clyde L. King, his appointee as member and chairman of the commission precipitated yesterday's veto. Pinchot had asked the Senate to return King's appointment, but the Senate ignored the request and subsequently failed to act upon the appointment.

A suit to oust Dr. King is awaiting decision of the Supreme Court. Senator James J. Coyne, of Allegheny County, is a member of the committee.

Democratic drive in Allegheny County which resulted in a record-breaking vote for Roosevelt.

A second member of the Roosevelt cabinet, Secretary of the Interior Harold W. Ickes, here to address the Washington and Jefferson College commencement today, was also at the breakfast table in the Benedum residence.

OTHER LEADERS

Others, in addition to Benedum, were Warren Van Dyke, Democratic state chairman; David L. Lawrence, Allegheny County chairman; Joseph F. Guffey, Joseph C. Trees, James F. Hillman, James C. Chaplin, Walter A. Jones, business associate of Benedum, and W. H. Eagan, of New York, personal friend of Postmaster General Farley.

Asked when changes in the offices of postmaster of Pittsburgh and United States attorney for this district were likely, Farley replied significantly:

"When do their terms expire?"

United States Attorney Louis E. Graham and Postmaster James B. Anderson were not on hand to greet the chief patronage distributor of the Roosevelt administration.

Farley was welcomed to the palatial Benedum home by Mrs. Benedum and was shown through the rose gardens.

half the profits in the firm's treasury, Morgan also has piled up millions of dollars upon his original investment.

Morgan has taken virtually one-fourth of all the firm's divided profits since 1916. During that period, the partnership paid $51,538,000 in income taxes, and it would be fair to assume that Morgan paid around one-fourth, or about $12,000,000, of this total.

In that event, his interest during the 17 years must have netted him close to $75,000,000.

INCOME TAX INQUIRY

The Senate's banking inquiry stood in recess today until Monday. Then, it will be reconvened to probe the income taxes of several Morgan partners and to turn the spotlight on the firm's tremendous railroad holdings.

The evidence will reveal the House of Morgan as owning one of the great railroad empires of the world, just as J. P. has been shown to rule the largest utility empire in America.

The tax angle will be directed at Thomas S. Lamont, a younger partner and son of Thomas W. Lamont. Young Lamont was directed to bring along all records of his stock sales on December 30, 1930—made apparently for the purpose of reducing his income taxes for that year.

Senator Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, chairman of the investigating committee, frankly announced this was to be an income tax inquiry.

Woodin Gave $10,000 To Rival of Pinchot

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—(AP.)—William H. Woodin, Democratic Secretary of the Treasury, contributed $10,000 in 1930 to the Republican gubernatorial nomination campaign of Francis Shunk Brown, who was defeated by Gifford Pinchot.

Brown at the time was personal attorney for William S. Vare. Other doners, who were also on the "favored" client list with Woodin, included E. T. Stotesbury, Morgan partner, and R. B. Mellon.

COUNTY DOOMS RODGERS FIELD

United States Army officials were to be notified today that the County Commissioners will not renew their lease on Rodgers Field at the end of this month, and that the field will be abandoned. Thus the government must accept the county's offer to move the Army hangars to the Municipal Airport, or find another field.

County officials are willing to move the hangars without expense to the government. The cost will be less than $10,000, according to Director A. M. Marion, of Parks and Aviation, although Commandant Samuel Eaton, of Rodgers Field, maintains it would be approximately $48,000.

Kidnapers Caught

MARY M'ELROY

Miss McElroy, the Kansas City society girl kidnaped from her bathtub and returned after 30 hours, whose wealthy father will get back some of the $30,000 ransom he paid. Police recovered part of it, arrested seven.

KIDNAP TRIALS TO BE RUSHED

KANSAS CITY, June 3.—(AP.)—Determined to make Kansas City feared by kidnapers, authorities prepared today for speedy prosecution of Walter H. McGee, 37, ex-convict, arrested with seven other persons in connection with the abduction of Miss Mary McElroy.

Police were somewhat uncertain as to the status of the seven, but expressed conviction McGee was the leader of the gang which seized the 25-year-old daughter of the city manager a week ago today and released her Sunday unharmed, after payment of $30,000 ransom by her father, H. F. McElroy.

Federal charges of transferring Miss McElroy from her Missouri home to Kansas, where she was held in a bungalow near Shawnee, and of sending letters through the mails were filed against McGee and four others arrested yesterday in Amarillo, Tex. Three others were held here.

The five apprehended in the Texas city were en route by airplane today for Kansas City in custody of officers.

A federal grand jury was scheduled to reconvene today to inquire into the case.

PUT SPOTLIGHT ON FARM BOARD

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP.)—An exhaustive investigation of the Farm Board and its related agencies has brought disclosure that the Farmers' National Grain Corporation borrowed millions from the government at one-eighth of one per cent, while farmers paid as high as six and seven per cent for the money.

This and other facts were contained in a report to the Senate on a long inquiry made by Comptroller General J. R. McCarl. Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, had the study made and a special investigator is now analyzing McCarl's findings for the Senate Agriculture committee.

The Farmers' National was organized under auspices of the Farm Board and dealt with the Grain Stabilization Corporation, also created by the board for its grain price pegging enterprise.

ARREST VOLPE IN BOMBING

city detectives to clean up the rackets were held over in Central Police Court today in connection with the bombing of the Ban Box.

Those held were charged with malicious mischief by the use of explosives are Terenzio, alias Jimmy Dallas, 37, of 112 North Bates street; Mike Walker, 40, and Thomas Findley, 38, both of 5825 Harvard street.

H. S. Ross, 37, of 342 Montgomery street, was discharged.

City Detective Michael Tortorelli, who made the arrest, testified that Terenzio had sought to buy the Ban Box from the proprietor, Tom Condas, also known as "Tom the Greek."

OFFERS REFUSED

According to Tortorelli, Terenzio offered to buy the Ban-Box from Condas at the time it was known as the Jungle Club, and Condas refused to sell. Recently the offer was renewed, it was testified, and Condas again refused.

A personal grudge also was seen as a possible motive because Joe Peeps, a friend of Terenzio's and alleged to be a bartender in a speakeasy which detectives say was conducted by Andy Condas, brother of the Ban-Box proprietor, was jailed for 30 days after a recent raid and his fine went unpaid.

Terenzio denied that he wanted to buy the Ban-Box. In court, he said:

"I don't know where the Ban-Box cabaret is and I was never in it."

HOUSE NOT GUARDED

Mayor Herron today denied that his house is being guarded by police. He said:

"My home is not being guarded and I don't propose that it shall be. We have a duty to perform and we will do it without fear or favor. I don't fear any racketeers. I am able to take care of myself."

The report that Meyer Schwartz, only one of 30 alleged numbers men held over yesterday in Central Police Court, had already been given back his numbers books and gambling paraphernalia and was again operating through his lieutenants at 1213 Penn avenue was denied by Mayor Herron after a conference with Supt. of Police Franklin T. McQuaide.

PROMISES RAID

Herron said:

"If they open they will be immediately closed. I don't think they will be dumb enough to open again."

Pinchot Backs Sunday Music, Bans Fishing

HARRISBURG, June 3.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot yesterday signed the Long (Philadelphia) bill permitting concerts on Sunday afternoons, and vetoed the Hoopes (Berks) bill which would allow Pennsylvanians to fish in the Delaware River on the Sabbath.

In vetoing the Hoopes measure, Pinchot said:

"This bill does not in any way contribute to breaking down of Sunday observance.

"If it did I would not sign it. It permits concerts after noon on Sundays only if and when permits therefor have been issued by the Department of Public Instruction, which must approve the programs in advance.

"The department of public instruction is not required to grant a license for a Sunday concert in any community which is opposed to Sunday music. Therefore the department in administering the act can give full weight to local opinion."

The Governor pointed out that the Sunday music programs cannot be commercialized.

Commissioners Resent 'Garbage Men' Role

Representative Joseph Rectenwald, recently dismissed as transcribing clerk by the County Commissioners, today has the satisfaction of knowing the commissions resent deeply a bill he presented in the Legislature, made them the official "garbage men" of Allegheny County.

When Shaler Township officials petitioned the County Commissioners to prevent garbage dumps in the township Chairman C. C. McGovern remarked:

"I never thought I would be chairman of any garbage business."

Commissioner [illegible] said:

"The Legislature made you that."

Under the Rectenwald bill the Commissioners will supervise and license all garbage disposal plants and trucks. McGovern said he was not in favor of setting up a political body to handle the supervision here.

The Commissioners finally sent a copy of the act to the legal department for an opinion on its constitutionality. This, however, sent it back to the attorneys who helped prepare amendments introduced by Commissioner W. D. Mansfield after the Rectenwald bill was presented.

REPEAL DEFEAT PREDICTED BY M'SPARRAN

Nullification Anarchy, Agriculture Head Tells Churchmen

Declaring that the Eighteenth Amendment will not be stricken from the Constitution, John A. McSparran, state secretary of agriculture, at the Second Presbyterian Church last night, predicted that 20 or more states will not agree to repeal.

McSparran said in the worst depression the country has ever known, and after nine years of prohibition, there has been no riots by hungry mobs in the United States; while, during other depressions, before prohibition, many riots by the hungry had to be quelled by soldiers. He said that the Eighteenth Amendment stopped drunkenness and rioetry.

As chairman of the Pennsylvania Prohibition Emergency Conference, McSparran told of combining the dry Democrats with dry Republicans in an effort to organize a majority against repeal and keep Pennsylvania dry. He said:

"Nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment is downright anarchy."

McSparren said that liquor is not a stimulant, but a narcotic poison.

He added:

"If the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, the cause won't be traced to the anti-drys, bootleggers or any other body, but will be traced to the church, where there is a lack of organization and interest on the part of the people."

that a certain character of sex pictures and crime pictures are demoralizing, even if these pictures fail to violate the detail of rules and proscriptions made by the censor boards.

A spirit of vulgarity or lewdness or licentiousness is sometimes much more demoralizing than an objectionable phrase or incident.

The censors eliminate vigorously improper phrases and incidents and frequently many that are of little or no impropriety, but seldom take into consideration a pervading spirit of lewdness or vulgarity.

WHAT IS required in the situation is not more censorship, but more intelligent censorship, more thoughtful and judicious censorship, and in many cases more liberal censorship.

Such more intelligent censorship would have a great amount of co-operation from the producers, who are discouraged from co-operation at present by the unjustifiable and sometimes inexplicable performances of some of the censorship boards.

The screen should be saved from the degeneracy of the stage and of modern literature, because as an indisputable fact the screen is much more of an educational factor than either literature or the stage drama.

In the first place it is, to a certain degree, patronized by every class and stratum of society and by individuals of every age.

In the second place, it permeates the whole nation, invading the smallest towns and appealing to the public in those small communities that hitherto knew nothing of the theater.

The screen must be regarded in the main as an educating and liberalizing influence; demoralizing factors must be excluded from it carefully but intelligently.

THE MAINTENANCE of the screen as an uplifting, rather than a debasing, influence should be undertaken entirely regardless of the fact that the screen may not now be regarded mainly as entertainment for children.

There is obviously no reason why adults should be demoralized.

In fact, as far as consistent with interest and entertainment, the enormous educational value of the screen should be employed to improve the taste and culture and moral standard of the adult.

There should be in the screen some of the sense of obligation to society that exists in the press.

It should be one of the objects of the producers of high-class moving pictures to employ the enormous influence of the screen for purposes beneficial to the community.

The argument is often heard that vulgar pictures and lewd pictures are made because the public demands them.

THERE MAY be an element of the public which patronizes prurience and vulgarity, but the screen should appeal to the better element of the public and endeavor by the constant presentation of pictures of high quality and character and equally high entertainment value to educate the lower element of the public out of its debased tastes. This is the important contribution the screen may make to moral and cultural progress.

Of course, the box office must be considered by managers and producers who are in business for material success and for dividends, but careful analysis of box office receipts shows that many of the highest quality pictures with the noblest themes have been the best money makers.

Granted that an easy way for some producers to make money is by prostituting the screen to prurient appeal, but moving pictures as a whole have reached such a position of dignity and importance in the community that the better producers should, and do, recognize this dignity and importance, and appreciate the obligation to society that this situation implies and imposes.

MATTERN OFF ON GLOBE HOP ALONE

Flier Over Atlantic In Dash Seeking Record

lin, more than 4,000 miles from New York, was his first aim.

After he soared away, however, Jack Clark II, his personal representative, announced that neither of these was right, that he would stop first in Paris, about 3,600 miles from New York, snatch a little sleep and go on to Moscow. Clark said he should make Paris in about 27 hours.

After the red-white-and-blue monoplane had soared to a height of 3,800 feet, it streaked away, in a tremendous burst of speed, toward Harbor Grace, N. F., where Mattern planned to head out over the Atlantic.

The oranges were Mattern's only food supply.

He smiled as a crowd which had stayed up all night cheered, and said:

"All I need is the oranges and a good tail wind to get over there in short order."

FRANKFURTER QUEST

Some friends, however, expressed the opinion that he would probably land first in Berlin. They said:

"He believes he can get better gasoline there. A second attraction is the German hot dogs. Mattern, whose passion is frankfurters, says the best he ever ate were served him at the Templehof airfield, in Berlin."

After Berlin, or Moscow, he planned halts for "40 winks" at Yakutsky, Siberia; Nome and Fairbanks, Alaska, and Edmonton, Alberta, whence he hopes to fly non-stop back to New York.

This route follows closely the one which he and Bennett Griffin mapped last year for a world-circling attempt which came to grief in a Russian peat bog.

Mattern, a former jazz drummer, received weather reports that his associates called "perfect." A map prepared by Dr. James H. Kimball, weather man who has become known as unofficial starter of ocean flights, indicated strong tail winds to Harbor Grace and across the ocean.

READY FOR ORDEAL

Bad weather had held him at the field for several days. Meantime he whipped himself into shape for the ordeal, one of the most severe ever faced by a flier, by daily session with punching bag and rowing machine.

He tumbled from bed in a Coney Island Hotel about 3 a. m., and went to the field, where he rubbed sleep from his eyes and watched mechanics pouring 702 gallons of gasoline into the plane.

He is a native of Freeport, Ill., and for his flying exploits has been made a colonel on the staffs of Gov. Murray, of Oklahoma, and Ferguson, of Texas. A husky and skilled youth, he has a background of army flying in Honolulu, or barnstorming and movie stunts.

His ship is a combination of two planes. The engine, propellor, tanks and some other parts are those of the original Century of Progress, which descended in the Russian bog, but the fuselage, wings, vertical fin and rudder are from "The Flying Trade Mark," in which Lieut. Will W. White and Clement McMullen set a New York-to-Buenos Aires record in 1930.

HAWKS, ROBOT BREAK RECORD

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP.)—Los Angeles and New York are only 13 hours 26 minutes and 15 seconds apart to Frank Hawks.

When he set down his "flying laboratory" at Floyd Bennett Field at 11:18 o'clock (Pittsburgh time) last night, it ended a nonstop solo flight from Los Angeles which broke Hawks' own record by four hours and 10 minutes. He established the record four years ago.

Capt. James Haislip spanned the continent last year in 10 hours and 19 minutes, but his flight was not non-stop.

Although Hawks flew alone, he said he was really a "passenger," the plane being handled most of the way by a robot pilot. Only when darkness came near Butler, Pa., did Hawks take over the controls.

Berlin Prepares To Greet Mattern

BERLIN, June 3.—(INS.)—Preparations were made at Tempelhof Aerodrome today to welcome James Mattern, Texas airman attempting to set a new round-the-world flight record.

While reports from New York said Mattern planned to make his first stop at Paris, aviation officials here hoped he would fly direct to Berlin.

Good Weather Ahead of Mattern

HALIFAX, N. S., June 3.—(AP.)—Brilliant sunshine and a brisk southwest wind prevailed along the Nova Scotia coast today to aid Jimmy Mattern in the early stages of the first leg of his round-the-world flight.

Morgan Girl Hurt After Seeing Parade

Returning to her home last night after watching the "Better Times Parade" Geraldine Fireman, 7, of Morgan, Pa., suffered injuries to her left leg in an automobile accident near Bridgeville. She was taken to West Penn Hospital.

VATICAN BANS GOVERNMENT OF SPAIN

Excommunication for Anti-Catholic Laws Ordered

VATICAN CITY, June 3.—(AP.)—The entire government of Spain has been automaticaly excommunicated from the Catholic Church for signing anti-Catholic decrees, the Vatican state department announced today after Pope Pius had issued a surprise encyclical declaring that new Spanish religious laws constituted a grievous attack on the church.

The department explained that no decree of excommunication will be proclaimed because the acts committed by the Spanish government come automatically under the provision of canon law.

The Vatican state department, in announcing the excommunication of the government of Spain, would not admit that the papal nuncio, Archbishop Tedeschini, would be recalled. But it was remarked that it would be an anomaly to have an apostolic nuncio accredited to an excommunicated government.

The belief here was that the Spanish embassy at the Holy See will be closed.

When diplomatic circles read the encyclical they characterized it as "a declaration of spiritual war" and said that the breaking off of diplomatic relations was inevitable.

MADRID, Spain, June 3.—(AP.)—Religious orders enrolling 38,000 nuns and monks became civil societies subject to taxation, and art treasures worth millions reverted to the state today with the publication of the new religious congregations law.

The measure, condemned by Spanish church officials, was made law yesterday with the signature of President Alcala Zamora. Parliament passed it, 278 to 50, on May 18.

7 KNOWN DEAD IN OIL BLAST

LONG BEACH, Cal., June 3.—(INS.)—Seven persons were known dead, four were missing and property damage was estimated at $2,500,000 today in a terrific oil refinery blast and fire in the rich Signal Hill oil field here.

The entire Signal Hill district was menaced yesterday by an explosion and fire that destroyed the $1,000,000 Richfield Oil Company absorption plant.

The roar was heard in Los Angeles and other cities 30 miles away, spreading fear that another earthquake had struck.

Firemen controlled the fire after it had raged four hours, destroying 20 oil derricks and 10 homes in the North Long Beach residential district, damaging many more.

The dead were C. J. Brown, Charles Cope, Duke Gaughan, Joseph Shumay and E. F. Wyler, Richfield Oil Company employes, and Mrs. Lottie Carlyon and Maryln Carlyon, 8, wife and daughter of Thomas Carlyon, D'Angelo Petroleum Company foreman.

Exhibition by DePaul Students Tomorrow

The annual exhibition of physical education will be given tomorrow at 3 p. m. by students of De Paul Institute, Castlegate avenue, Brookline. The 147 deaf pupils have been taught to sing, recite and play.

The exhibition, under direction of Prof. Charles A. Geber, will include gymnastics, drills and dancing. The public is invited.

Boy Hit by 'Runaway' Emery Wheel Dies

Struck in the stomach by a "runaway" emery wheel, Milan Opacic, 8, of 3101 Northview street, died early today in St. Joseph's Hosiptal. The youth was watching his father sharpen an ax when the wheel broke loose from its shaft.

Fire Marshal Pay Measure Vetoed

County Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr will have to keep right on working for $10 a year, if he wants to retain the job he has held for 20 years.

Gov. Pinchot vetoed the bill of Senator Coyne providing a salary of $4,000 a year.

Apache Dancer Cruel, Partner-Wife Charges

KIKI . . . MRS. AIMEE T. STANICHICH, 23

Another romance of the boards threatens to make its curtain call in the divorce courts of Allegheny County. This time the actors are dancers known to Pittsburgh's night club life, according to records on file today.

Kiki and Devere, who make several partings in their Apache dance act, are on the verge of making a final parting, according to a divorce libel. This was revealed by A. Lincoln Cohen, attorney for Kiki, who is Mrs. Aimee Tienpont Stanichich, 23.

One expects cruel things in an Apache dance, but Kiki charges cruelty off the stage in her libel.

Theirs was a theatrical romanse and they had danced together for a year before their marriage in 1927.

As a dancing team, Kiki and her husband, Ante, 39, have appeared in numerous Pittsburgh night clubs during the last six years.

The "White Cargo" is their most spectacular dance. As if in furious anger, her husband whirls Kiki around while grasping her by the hair.

Although parted as husband and wife, they are still dancing together for bread and butter reasons. If she gets her divorce, Kiki hopes to go it alone as a singer and dancer.

SCHOOL MUSIC MAKERS VIE

ELMHURST, Ill., June 3.—(AP.)—This suburb became the juvenile musical capital of America today as 1,600 boys and girls competed for honors in the national school orchestra contest.

Judges prepared to listen to Class A orchestras, ensembles and soloists today, but officials said no results would be announced until the close of the contest tonight.

Yesterday Class C orchestras from Westfield, Ind.; Angola, Ind., and Geneva, Ill., and Class B orchestras from Bellevue, Pa.; Goshen, Ind.; Adrian, Mich.; Mooseheart, Ill.; Whiting, Ind.; Ottawa, Kan., and East Syracuse, N. Y., played and were judged.

Two Brothers Die In New York Fire

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP.)—Two brothers, 15 and 11, perished today in a fire that swept a West Side tenement house.

Firemen, smashing into the burning building, found Walter and Bobbie Hunt dead. Two youths and a 12-year-old girl suffered serious burns.

Night Court Judge Frees 19, Holds 2

At the second session of the new Night Court held in Central Police Station last night, Magistrate Leo Rothenberg freed 19 men charged with drunkenness and violating city ordinances. Two "old-timers" were sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse.

Gibbons Street Man Dies of Auto Injury

Leonard Wittman, 80, of 1013 Gibbons street, died today in Mercy Hospital of injuries suffered when he walked into an automobile driven by Dr. Richard J. Callahan, 1011 Forbes street, at Fifth avenue and Chatham street.

CHILDREN HURT NAPPING IN AUTO

Three children were bruised late last night when a hit-run driver, speeding in Center avenue, struck a parked automobile in which they were sleeping.

The children, Melvin, 15, and Pearl Richmond, 12, of 733 Lockhart street, and their cousin, Leonard Black, 10, had been visiting at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Goldberg at Center avenue, near Herron avenue, when they climbed into the car and fell asleep.

Man Takes Radio, Neglects to Pay

When the clerk of the Olbum Furniture Company, 113 Federal street, North Side, went to the back of the store, an unidentified man last night walked out with a radio. The music box was valued at $59.

Rheumatic King George Misses Birthday Fete

LONDON, June 3.—(AP.)—King George V observed his sixty-eighth birthday anniversary today, but rheumatism in a shoulder prevented him from attending a glittering military pageant in his honor.

Rather the Prince of Wales was deputized to represent his majesty at the trooping of the color, the annual function on the Horse Guards parade to which the King has been wont to ride, attired in uniform, from the palace along the Mall with a gay retinue.

Except for the rheumatic attack, the King is in good health, and many prayers were offered for his continued well being. His ailing shoulder prevents him from wearing a uniform.

His attainment of the sixty-eighth milestone is in keeping with the longevity records general among British rulers for, since 1714 when the first George ascended the throne, only two monarchs failed to reach that age.

They were George I and George IV, both being 67 years old at death. Edward VII, father of the present ruler, was 68 when he died.

PASTORS SCORE INCOME TAX AS UNFAIR

Law's Injustice Cited As Sales Levy Plan Grows in Favor

Scorn and resentment for the income tax laws, allowing millionaires to go tax free while the burden of government was carried by the depression-ridden masses, was expressed today by the clergy of Pittsburgh.

As a remedy, several advocated the sales tax as one which would force from the wealthy a larger share of the financing of government and prevent discrimination.

All were quick to spring to the defense of the "little fellow" and all stressed the inadequacy and injustice of the present income tax laws.

BLAMES POLITICIANS

The Rev. James R. Cox, Old St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church:

"I think instead of talking about what Morgan has done, investigation should be made of the present income tax laws and of the law-makers who framed them. There is a collusion between the big business man and the politician to defraud th government. Big business has built itself a Chinese wall of legalities to escape every tax. Iniquitous and unjust, the income tax laws were drawn up by politicians accepting the donations of big business."

The Rev. Dr. R. B. Johnson, moderator of Monongahela Presbytery of the United Presbyterian Church:

"I don't think we ought to have a form of income tax law which allows discrimination in favor of men such as J. P. Morgan. Everyone ought to pay. I would favor the sales tax, with its assurance of everyone paying."

SALES TAX FAVORED

The Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Christian Church, North Side:

"It seems to me that the present income tax system is all wrong. Any system that permits such reductions allowing millionaires to go tax-free must have something the matter with it.

"It seems to me that some such system as the sales tax ought to be employed."

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, pastor of Second Presbyterian Church:

"It is a great outrage that the small man should pay taxes while the big man—like Morgan—escapes. I think we'll have to come to a sales tax, and the quicker the better."

The Rev. Alexander Gibson, pastor of McKinley Park Presbyterian Church and former director and organizer in the Helping Hand Society:

"I believe, and I think my opinion is that of many other ministers, that most of the wealthy are not properly sharing the income tax burden. Something in the way of reform will have to be done. Frankly, I am not in favor of the sales tax, but it seems to be the best way out at the present time."

Closed Bank to Pay Depositors $133,299

A total of $133,299 will be distributed to 7,671 depositors of the closed Bank of Secured Savings June 15, according to announcement today by the State Banking Department.

The distribution amounts to 10 per cent of deposits and is the second made since the bank closed July 12, 1932. The previous payment of 15 per cent was made December 15, 1932.

Shady Side's Outdoor Commencement

THE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT SHADY SIDE ACADEMY . . . SENIORS LINED UP IN FRONT

28 GRADUATED BY SHADY SIDE

Class Day and commencement exercises for 28 members of the graduating class of Shady Side Academy were held yesterday in the Curry gymnasium.

Judge Frederick P. Schoonmaker of United States District Court addressed the class. Student speakers on the program were Spencer R. Hackett, first honor student; Harper Follansbee, second honor student; Richard G. Colbert, first prize in public speaking, and William R. Clarkson, president of the fifth form, who accepted the school seal from Follansbee, president of the graduating class.

The reading of the class history by Charles F. Arrott, Jr., and the prophecy by Robert J. Dodds, Jr., marked the class day exercises earlier in the day. The ivy speech was made by Robert Heyward, who planted the ivy grown at Windsor Castle, England. Frederick H. Parkin made the flag speech.

Hoover's Son Freed On Traffic Charges

LOS ANGELES, June 3.—(AP.)—Allan Hoover, son of former President Hoover, was acquitted yesterday of two traffic charges. He was arrested May 20 by Traffic Officer G. W. Sparks. Sparks said Hoover was traveling 38 miles an hour across a 15-mile-an-hour intersection and had no driver's license.

Hoover's attorney appeared in court and explained Hoover had obtained a license since his arrest. The speeding charge was dismissed when the attorney pointed out a defect in the complaint.

That's Gratitude

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

Way down amid the Tropics
Where days and nights were calm
He dreamed of pleasing topics
Beneath a spreading palm,
The politician pondered,
In blissful memory,
And as his fancy wandered
He wrote his friend, J. P.

"I remember, I remember
The house at Broad and Wall
In April or December,
In springtime or in fall.
I recollect the bankful
Of stocks that flowed so free,
And I am very thankful
That you remembered me."

YOUTH KILLED IN BARN 'HUNT'

Charles Schafley, 17, Monroeville, last night was shot and killed in a barn on the farm of James Queen, Patton Township, near Monroeville, while he and four other boys were shooting rats, according to a morgue report.

The rifle, according to the report, in the hands of one of Schafley's companions, was discharged prematurely, the bullet striking the boy in the head. Before a doctor could be summoned, the youth was dead.

County detectives said the boy had been shot in the back. They were questioning Edward Young and William Kummick, both of near Turtle Creek, and Robert Daley, of Upper Monroeville road.

3-GUN WILSON CASE UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—(AP.)—Contempt of court charges against Harold D. (Three-Gun) Wilson, federal prohibition official, arising from his refusal to tell who gave him a key to a club he raided, were upheld yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The court, however, directed Judge John P. Nields, of the District Court at Wilmington, Del., to change his order holding Wilson in jail "until he purged himself" of contempt, to a definite sentence of either fine or imprisonment.

While serving as a deputy prohibition administrator in Delaware, Wilson led a raid on the headquarters of the Democratic League of Delaware. The government later dropped prosecution of the case.

The Appellate Court suggested that since the case had been dropped, the ends of justice might be served by imposition of a light fine. Wilson now is working in Nebraska.

7 Divorces Asked, 2 Decrees Granted

Divorce suits have been filed by John Deter against Louise A. Deter, Yolanda Kish against Bela Kish, Aimee Stanichich against Ante Stanichich, Aloysius Pelikan against Elizabeth Pelikan, James L. McBeth against Addie McBeth, Mollie Vogel against Jack Vogel and by Stanford Woomer against Marie Woomer.

Divorces were granted to Goldie D. Jones from David O. Jones and to William T. Jones from Edna Jones.

THOUSANDS SEE BETTER TIMES PAGEANT

Civic and Fraternal Groups Join Business Men in Celebration

Sinister, gloomy "Hard Times" is no more—that if the thousands of merry Pittsburghers who surged on Fifth avenue's sidewalks to give him his "last ride" last night had anything to do with it.

As the "Old Man" went to his last resting place, the throngs of cheering "mourners," packing the line of march from Schenley Park to North Side, welcomed "Miss Better Times," pertly personified by Miss Beulah Corey, of Sumac street, McKeesport.

More than 100 civic, fraternal and commercial organizations were represented in the parade, arranged by a committee of 100 prominent Pittsburghers headed by Edgar J. Kaufmann, detachment of state police from Greensburg and an escort of Pittsburgh police, headed by Supt. of Police Franklin T. McQuaide and Mayor John S. Herron, led the cortege of gaily-decorated floats, mummers, street dancers, bands and drum and bugle corps.

More than a dozen bands, six drum and bugle corps and 27 floats, augmented by the entire personnel of many business organizations, participated. The national groups included German, Jewish, Hungarian, Polish and Ukrainian societies.

Prizes were awarded to the girl and the man with the biggest smiles, fancy and funny costumes, oldest automobile, best manufacturer's float, best appearing band, drum and bugle corps, street dancers, all-nations group, drill team, commercial float and women's marching group; the float best depicting better times, the oddest float, the best decorated truck and the firm having the greatest number of employes in line.

Judges, stationed on the reviewing stand at Fifth avenue and Smithfield street, were Charles A. Wunderly, James L. Adler, Quin Hall, Mrs. Harry Dippel, Dolores Reade, Alice Gallegher and Carolyn Herring.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure, centered over Kentucky and Tennessee is causing mostly clear skies over most of the country east of the Rocky Mountain states, while low pressure over the far West is causing considerable cloudiness over the Rocky Mountain states. Precipitation for the last 24 hours was limited to the northern plains, the Upper Mississippi Valley and the upper lake region, where light to moderately heavy showers and thunderstorms occurred. Temperatures are now about normal or slightly above, with a tendency toward rising over the eastern states. There is no indication at present for a change to cooler.

The Story of Queen Esther —:— CHAPTER VI —:— Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

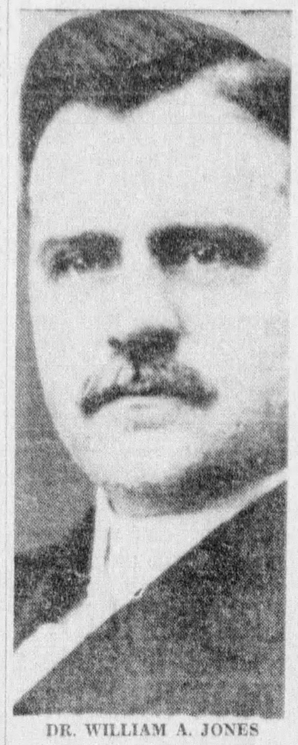
Haman, the King's chief captain, hated the humble Jew, Mordecai, who refused to bow the neck to him when all others did. Haman plotted revenge.

Haman persuaded King Xerxes to decree the death of every Jew in the kingdom. By slaying all he would get the one without revealing his hatred of him.

Terror and mourning spread among the Jews at the prospect of their destruction, which was set for a certain day. They tore their garments and wept.

At last the news reached Queen Esther in the palace. She, too, was shocked and horrified by the menace to her people. Though Queen, she was a Jewess first. (Continued next week)

Pastor Honored



DR. WILLIAM A. JONES

The Rev. Dr. Jones, whose pastorate at Knoxville Presbyterian Church will be commemorated by a tablet to be unveiled tomorrow morning at the church.

CRISS ELECTED SOLICITOR

The Pitsburgh Board of Public Education yesterday elected Attorney N. R. Criss, its vice president, as solicitor, by a unanimous vote.

The election filled the vacancy left by the death of J. Rodgers McCreery. Criss had been a member of the board almost 22 years. A bill passed recently by the Legislature permitted him to take the solicitorship.

Taylor Allderdice was elected vice president to replace Criss.

With minor changes, the board approved recommendations for reappointment of teachers submitted by Superintendent Ben Graham.

Applause greeted the appearance of David B. Oliver, first vice president of the board, who is now 98 years old.

Mifflin M. E. Church To Report Surplus

At least one Pittsburgh church closes its fiscal year with accounts balanced. The Rev. Dr. N. H. Sanner, of the Mifflin Methodist Episcopal Church, Whitney avenue, Wilkinsburg, will report to the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Bellevue, from June 6 to 9, that his church has not only been able to balance its budget for the year ended May 31 and pay all current bills, but to show a surplus.

Show and Festival For Grotto Members

A stag show and spring festival, sponsored by Islam Grotto, will be held in the Grotto, East Montgomery avenue, Monday night.

The affair is complimentary to members exclusively. Ben Metz is chairman.

Luther Talks, Two Races Broadcast

Fay Bainter Star In Geisha Drama

With Fay Bainter, star of the legitimate stage, portraying the principal role, "A Grain of Sand," this week's American Weekly drama, is presented today on WCAE at 7:45 p. m.; WWVA, Wheeling, W. Va., at 5:45 p. m., and WMMN, Fairmont, W. Va., at 6:45 p. m.

Based on an article published in tomorrow's issue of the big feature magazine distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph, the playlet deals with the astonishing career of a Japanese girl who, having been sold as a geisha by her father, eventually rose to a high degree of social and civic prominence.

Addresses at the Western Pennsylvania Democrats' testimonial dinner to Postmaster General James A. Farley in the Hotel William Penn tonight will be aired by KDKA beginning at 8 p. m. with Secretary of the Interior Ickes topping the list of speakers.

Others to be heard during the broadcast are Gov. Herman G. Kump, of West Virginia; Joseph F. Guffy, state Democratic leader, and Mrs. J. Wood Clark, vice chairman of the Allegheny County Committee.

The Rev. James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's, and the Rev. Edward M. Wilson, of Trinity Cathedral, will give the invocation and benediction, respectively, and County Chairman David A. Lawrence will preside.

"Germany's Policy of Reconstruction" is the topic of an address by Dr. Hans Luther, first ambassador from Germany to the United States since the Hitler regime, over CBS-WJAS at 10:15 p. m.

Hicks Steals Job, Saves 'Alibi'

By AIRCASTER

To the spectators in the WJZ studio, it had the aspects of a professional feud.

The usually affable George Hicks frowned darkly at his brother announcer, Charles O'Connor, who was about to murmur the station announcement into the mike.

With an unceremonious elbow Hicks nudged O'Connor and proclaimed with honeyed accents:

"This is WJZ, New York."

And when O'Connor growled, Hicks grinned:

"Sorry, pal. But I had to do it. When I told my wife I was coming to the studio tonight, she looked as if she doubted me—so I had to say something so she could hear it. Now she'll believe me."

Joe Falvo's Orchestra, featured over WIBO, Chicago, and NBC networks, comes to Kennywood Park for a week's stand Monday. . . . Beginning Monday night, Johnny Johnson's Orchestra will do two broadcasts nightly over WWSW.

Kaufmann's new anniversary theme song, to be featured on all Kaufmann radio programs throughout the month, was written by Walter E. Sickles, WWSW composer-announcer. Its title: "June, Month of Roses."

Odds and Ends

If you've wondered: that WJAS night announcer who works a la Louis Dean is Charles Arlington. He plans a jaunt to Columbia's New York studios during his vacation.

Last-minute changes postponed that promised address by Mussolini—to have been aired at noon today—indefinitely.

The Boswells are due back in New York this week to sail London-wards.

The Mills Brothers are sojourning to Piqua, O.— their home town—awaiting brother John's recovery from his recent siege of pneumonia.

Elsie Hitz, having dispensed with her wheel-chair, is walking for the first time in two months, but still must be carried up all studio stairs.

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

George Wootton, baritone who recently received favorable reports from a Columbia chain audition, will be heard in another quarter-hour broadcast on WJAS tonight at 7:30.

"My Gypsy Rhapsody" promises to be the highspot of the "Songs at Eventide" program, featuring Paul Gannon at 6:45. Katherine Rickert, co-starred with Ralph Federer on this quarter-hour, will offer a special violin chorus

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

These are the days when every one seems to be digging up souvenirs from the Chicago Columbian Exposition of 1893.

Mrs. Catherine Griffin is displaying a silk flag, picturing the fair buildings. Her husband brought it back from Chicago when he was 9 years old.

Mrs. Catherine Undercoffer, Jucunda street, has one of those half dollars with Columbus' portrait, a souvenir of the same fair. She has always carried it as a pocket piece.

* * *

I don't know what a bean beetle is, but one gardening Globe-Trotter reports its appearance. W. J. Cartus, Eighteenth Ward, wants other city farmers warned.

Mrs. H. W. Davis has imported fighters to withstand insect invasion of her garden. Her cocoons are expected to open today when innumerable praying mantis will be introduced to the world in general and her garden patch in particular.

Globe-Trotters would do well to welcome mantis to their gardens if they should appear. At first they may frighten you. They look like oversize grasshoppers with two thick front legs in a position which gives an observer the impression of prayer. They are somewhat hideous and deadly-looking, but only dangerous to other insects, flies, and other pests.

Mrs. Bolen, Penn Township—The reason that your friend's car was stopped for carrying ferns is that at certain times and certain places the state sets up a quarantine. Perhaps a new pest or blight has appeared there and to control the spread, plants which may be carrying the disease are not permitted to be taken from the quarantine limits.

Gardeners and landscapers are promised something worthwhile in the 300 block of North Seventh street, Jeannette. Mountain laurel, with a peony and pine tree background.

And to top it off the foresters at State Camp 136, Galeton, Pa., are heard from. They like to read after chopping down trees. Any books, any old magazines?

Globe-Trotter Not On Air Tonight

In deference to a network description of the American Derby on WCAE from 6 to 6:45 p. m., the usual 6:30 broadcast of news by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, is canceled tonight.

His three remaining broadcasts today—9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m. and 2:15 p. m.—are carried by WCAE only.

At 12:30 o'clock today, at a quiet ceremony attended by only the members of the two families, Maude Langston Wofford, daughter of the John Albert Woffords, of Laurens, S. C., became the bride of Chalmers Thomas Siviter, son of the Thomas Siviters, of Farragut street.

Due to the recent death of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Millard C. Poffenderger, the wedding took place in Pittsburgh in the chapel of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, instead of in New York. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson. There were no attendants.

Bridal Luncheon

After the ceremony a small and informal luncheon was held in the Hotel Schenley, after which Mr. Siviter and his bride left on an eastern motor tour. They will reside here.

The bride, by the way, is a sister of Mrs. Charles C. Elmers, director of girls' work at the Sara Heinz House.

There's going to be a benefit garden party and cabaret in New Castle on the eighth of June—Thursday. The event is to be held at the home of Mrs. Grace Phillips Johnson, of New Castle, a sister of T. W. Phillips, Jr., of Phillips' Hall, Butler.

Benefit Cabaret

Folks from Pittsburgh, Butler, Sewickley and other places roundabout are planning to attend.

There'll be a band concert, a cabaret, tennis, miniature golf and fortune telling, in addition to viewing the gardens, and a play to be given out-of-doors.

Paul Fleeger, of Butler, will assist with the cabaret, and Dave Roberts of KDKA will give imitations.

Among the out-of-town friends assisting Mrs. Johnson will be Mrs. Carl W. Core, of Ford City, Pa., and Mrs. Rolland T. Spaide, of Butler.

The Arnold School is planning a Junior School Day Friday when a group of students will give the French play, "La Danseuse de Jean."

Play at Arnold

Knox Brown, a pupil of J. Fred Lissfelt, who teaches piano at the school, will give a recital, and boys of the fourth form will depict the history of transportation.

Those taking part will be Bobby Donworth, Tom Redington, Lee Monro, Pete Frampton, Dev Miller, Tom Turner and Sam Marshall.

The junior school also will have exhibits in art and music.

The C. F. C. Arensbergs, of Amberson avenue, have gone to their summer place, Compton, on the eastern shore of Maryland.

Visit in Maryland

The James Verner Scaifes, of South Negley avenue, have as their guest Mrs. Scaife's sister, Mrs. John Gervais Williams, of St. Paul Minn.

Harriet Jones Married to Ohio Man

Miss Harriet Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jones, of Gearing avenue, and Edward Charles Strothman, son of Mrs. Charles Strothman, of Cincinnati, O., are being married this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Krueger, of Bennett street, uncle and aunt of the bride.

The Rev. J. Kirkwood Craig, assisted by the Rev. Alexander Gibson, of the McKinley Park Presbyterian Church, are officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is wearing traditional white satin, made with a full court train, and her veil is of tulle finished with a cap of tulle. She is carrying a white satin testament with a marker of orange blossoms from California.

Mrs. John Reader, as matron of honor, is wearing blue lace, and the bridesmaids, Miss Madeline Emrick and Miss Irene Emendorfer, are wearing green and pink lace, and all are carrying pink peonies.

Robert Howard, of Cincininati, is best man. Mrs. Anthony Jones is playing the wedding music, and Miss Gertrude Emrick is the soloist.

The bride's mother is wearing gray chiffon.

There is a reception following the ceremony, after which Mr. Strothman and his bride are leaving on their honeymoon. After July 1 they will be at home in Gearing avenue.

Josephine Martz Becomes Bride In Church

At a very pretty ceremony at 10 o'clock this morning in St. James' Roman Catholic Church, Wilkinsburg, Miss Josephine Martz, daughter of William H. Martz, of Wilkinsburg, became the bride of James T. McKnight, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McKnight, of Wesley avenue, Wilkinsburg.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white taffeta, princess style, with a white horsehair braid hat, and carried white tea roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Emma Gaskill, her only attendant, wore eggshell taffeta with green accessories and carried yellow tea roses. Alex Ross was the best man.

After the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast for the bridal party in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, and a reception in the Martz home later.

Mr. and Mrs. McKnight will go to Erie on their wedding trip and after Wednesday will be at home in Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg.

Margaret J. Ganz Names June 17 For Wedding

June 17 is the date chosen by Miss Margaret J. Ganz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Ganz, of Lowrie street, for her marriage to Rolland A. Wisner, son of Mrs. Stephen Wisner, of Jennings avenue, Salem, O. The ceremony will be held in the Ganz home at 5:30 o'clock with the Rev. Elbert Oney as officiant.t

Miss Gantz has chosen as her maid of honor, Miss Ethel Helm, her cousin, and William Potts will be best man.

Mr. Wisner and his bride will leave on a motor trip and later will be at home in Teece avenue, Bellevue.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 3. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, I am glad to see the midgets get a break. In all my experiences around show business they are mighty fine little folks. We have had "bank relief," "big business relief," and now we get "midget relief." Mr. Morgan acted mighty human, he just picked up the little midget and treated her as though she was the Federal Reserve or the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Will Rogers

I'll tell you how Mr. Morgan can square this whole thing, and you will never hear another word against him, that's by putting everybody on the preferred list that wasn't on it already. I haven't heard a kick, only by a few that were overlooked.

WILL.

Dolores Weslager Betrothed to W. E. Buente

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weslager, of Carrick, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dolores Weslager, to W. Edward Buente. At a bridge party in the Weslager home on Monday, announcement was made of the betrothal to friends of the bride-elect.

She is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, and a member of Delta Zeta. Her fiance, also a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, is a member of Kappa Sigma. A late August wedding is being planned.

Mrs. Richard Arthur, chairman of the social committee, is arranging the luncheon for the Woman's Club of the City of Pittsburgh which will be held Tuesday in the Pittsburgh Field Club.

Thursday Afternoon Club Promised Unusual and Varied Programs

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The thirty-sixth season of the Thursday Afternoon Club of Wilkinsburg promises to give the members an even more varied program than usual. In the new year books are subjects that run the gamut from highlights of the State Federation Convention, speeches by visitors, to "Sweethearts of Literature" and a playlet called "Love and Tea."

October 5 will mark the opening of the new season with president's and guest day and a program of music and dances. In addition to the Federation reports, there's to be a talk by Ray Tucker on "Taxation," this also in October. A visit to the International Art Exhibit, an hour of entertainment by Bess Hall Foster, an address by Judge Frank Patterson are the events of November. Mrs. G. F. Packard will tell the Christmas story in pictures at the single December meeting.

Norman M. Jeannero, of the Post-Gazette, is to speak in January and the new year also will take the women for a visit to the Workshop for the Blind. A valentine party and a playlet in February, an address by William Martin, of the University of Pittsburgh, on "Racial Background in Pennsylvania" and a play by the Dramatic Club of Wilkinsburg High School are other spring events.

C. H. Manley will tell the club about "Birds of Early Spring," an antique fair is listed; Bishop Brown will discuss "Buying Habits of Pittsburgh Women" and then, on May 24, a covered dish luncheon and annual reports will end the year.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Start Air Trip West

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP.)—Leaving the White House tomorrow Mrs. Roosevelt plans to start the first transcontinental trip by air ever taken by a President's wife, not returning until Tuesday, June 13.

But that doesn't mean a White House minus a hostess until June 13.

Washington already has learned that when Mrs. Roosevelt goes away, her pretty daughter, Mrs. Anna Dall, has a quiet, efficient way of slipping into her mother's place behind the tea table.

But she comes and goes with so little fuss, the country scarcely realizes it is getting two White House hostesses for the price of one.

P. T. A. to Hear Outline Of Changes in Schools

Proposed changes in the Bellevue schools will be outlined before the Jackson Parent-Teacher Association Monday afternoon by Homer J. Freese, a member of the school board. Martin P. Chworowsky, principal of Falk School, is the principal speaker. The program also includes music by the Junior High Orchestra and Mrs. Herbert Woelfel.

The meeting will be concluded with a tea.

Home for Aged Auxiliary To Give Garden Party

Music and a tea will feature the garden party to be given Thursday afternoon by the Women's Auxiliary to the Home for the Aged in Glenshaw. Mrs. Frank Pearson and Mrs. James Lewis are co-chairmen.

10 Years Peace, Then Action for Our Boys Now 8

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Peace for 10 years is great for our 8-year-old schoolboys, boys.

It guarantees them plenty of action in 1943.

For a decade everything will be serene outside of some plotting, a little retail shooting of international spies and the patriotic bootlegging of new poison gases in hidden laboratories.

Then, on a glorious summer day in 1943, some nut will holler:

"Get your men together."

Everything will be tangled up like two tomcats over a washline. And from 1943 to 1947 the cooties will be glad to see some warm, woolen underwear again.

Ten years is the best we can do. We asked for a 99-year lease with an option. But tempers are short in the old world.

We can picture the premiers singing the papers and saying:

"Remember, pal, this ain't a wedding. It's a postponed engagement."

RAINCOATS GO GAY WITH COLOR PLAIDS, CHECKS, AND WHITE

ONCE UPON a time raincoats were invariably dreary. They were always olive drab. They weighted you down. What's more, they had a peculiar, musty odor about them which was depressing. The closet where raincoats hung was a chamber of horrors. Psychologically the makers of raincoats were missing a trick. Rain, when you've prayed for the sun, is bad enough without your going into mourning over it.

* * *

A TEEMING day is just the time to look snappiest. Bright colors or white, or checks are indicated. A couple of years ago a rubberized silk raincoat was developed which weighed far less than a pound. What was more, it was so soft it could be rolled into a tiny envelope of the same material and jammed into a pocket. It came in entrancing colors. Now all raincoats are light, gay and practical.

* * *

TAKE FOR example the checked swagger coat above. It would look well on any sort of day. It's a cotton brightly set off by leather frogs. Then, just for fun, there's an umbrella to match it with a tiny compartment in the handle for tip-rubbers. And there you are, ready for the first drop of rain.

* * *

THE WHITE COAT will rejoice any young thing. Its crepe de chine with accents of black supplied by its buttons and belt buckle. The little collar stands up pertly so that no rain can slither down the back of your neck. If you're an invariable package carrier, as most of us are, the caped model has manifest advantages. This is soft gray crepe de chine, sleeveless under the cape. You can stow away precious books and bundles, to say nothing of keeping your gloves unspotted.

* * *

THE COAT under the cape is full length, of course, so you're perfectly ship-shape when you've belted yourself into it. Incidentally putting them on even when the d[illegible] model and the other two are so swagger you'll find yourself [illegible]test just because you c[illegible] bear to wait till the sky clouds up.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

All Youngsters Should Learn To Face Life Bravely

Is it up to mamma to steer her little girl's life and ward off all hurts?

And shall she ask the boy friend his intentions so daughter won't get too interested in him and break her heart in case he isn't really serious?

That's the problem which a Devoted Mother is bringing into the column today.

For 13 years she has been a pal to her baby girl, advised her and directed her, and now—

My dear Miss Robinson:

Would you suggest my interference in this case? I will tell you just what it is. I am the mother of an 18-year-old daughter. It has been my life's ambition to be not only a mother to her, but a real pal in whom she could confide her innermost secrets.

I have succeeded in everything, so far as I can see, but now I am wondering whether I had the right to do so. She comes to me for advice about everything, and it is very difficult for me, as I don't know how to advise her at present.

I had enlightened her at a very early age, therefore I was not afraid to let her go out with boys occasionally before she was 15. She has had her little infatuations, and she has always told me about them. I either encouraged or discouraged her, according to circumstances, and we always agreed.

Now it is an entirely different matter. She is older and therefore takes life more seriously; but she still depends on me to advise her and, God knows, I cannot let her down. So I want your opinion on this matter.

MOTHER IS PUZZLED

For the last four months she has been going around with a young man we have all known for some time. There is nothing I can say against him. He is fine, intelligent, comes from a nice family and possesses a good character. She is falling in love with him.

That frightens me, because I don't know whether he is in love with her or not, as he never speaks about the future to her. That may be on account of his financial difficulties. He is not earning anything at present, but must depend on his parents. He is 25 years old and has a good profession when he has a chance to work at it.

She is giving him all her time and refusing invitations from other boys. She prefers to spend all her spare time with him, even if it means staying home evening after evening.

Now I don't mind that part at all. I would rather see her happy with a poor chap than otherwise. But supposing he isn't as serious about this affair as she is? Supposing he is just amusing himself with her, because he can't afford to take girls out?

Supposing he only calls on her because he finds her in pleasant surroundings? Supposing he suddenly decides to stop seeing her? Since she is in love with him, what shall I do for her then?

Do you think it would be right for me to speak to him and tell him how things are? I would like to spare her as much heartache as I can, as she depends on my advice more now than ever before.

A DEVOTED MOTHER.

SHOULD NOT INTERFERE

Should you "speak to him?" No, my dear. Don't. Of course it is foolish for your girl to give him all her time when they're not engaged. It would be foolish even if he were obviously serious.

Men lose interest in easy conquests which require no effort on their part. They want to win their way—either in life or with women.

If your little girl is wise she'll go places and see other young people. She will surround herself with friends and other interests outside of him. Then his interest in her will be stimulated, because she will be interesting; and if he wants her to care for him and wait for him he'll say so.

But how about you?

What can you do for her if he walks out? Nothing! You can only begin now to help her to think for herself, instead of depending for her ideas on you. You can help her to realize that life, the happiest life, is bound to meet up with bumps and heartaches—and teach her to meet them with her chin up and her courage hitting on all six.

But you can't save her from hurts, my dear; and you have no right to try. She'll have to meet life of her own, and it is up to you not to shield her, but to teach her to enter it gallantly.

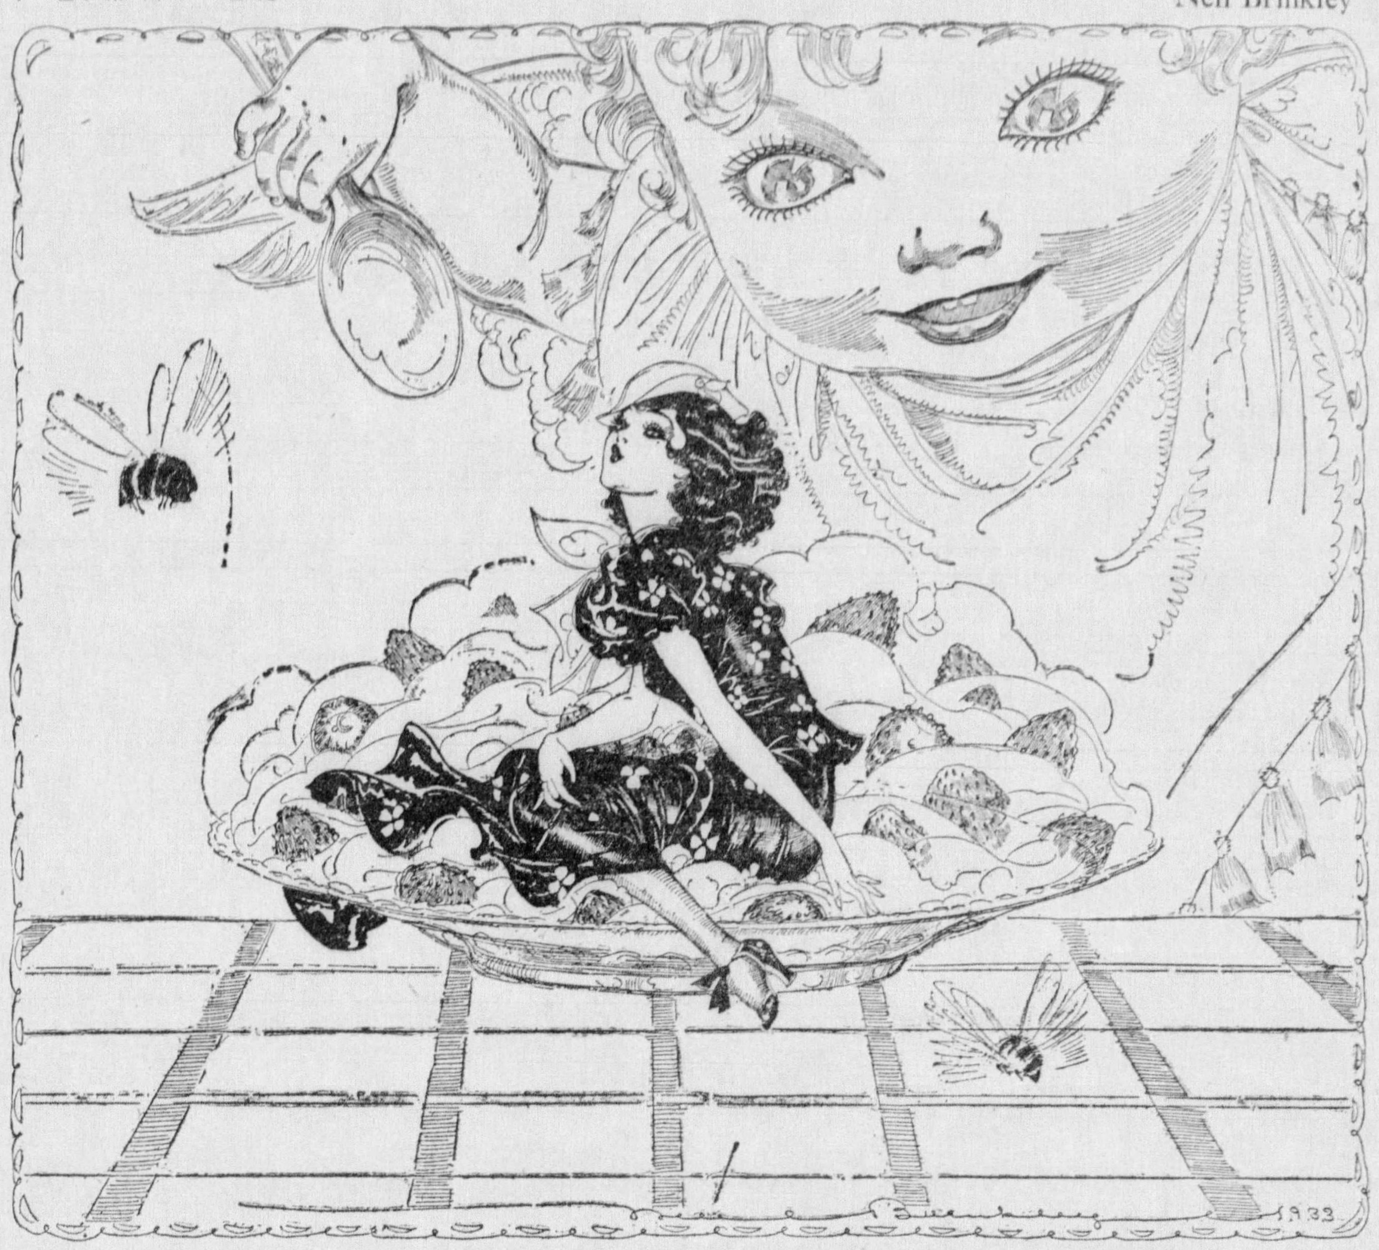
'A DAINTY DISH' -o- -o- Drawn by Nell Brinkley



What's a dainty dish to set before the King? Juddy says "Oh boy!" when it's frozen nestlerode pudding with chestnuts—but Bob uses boydom's last and highest exclamation meaning ecstasy when he turns his two blue eyes into a dish of Grandmother-made roast beef and Yorkshire pudding. Jack loves Brussels sprouts, and his Jill adores French pastry, the more lush and ju-jube-y-er the better. Your dainty dish may be caviar, and mine bread and butter and tea. You may write poetry to humming-bird pie, but I remember eggs and bacon in New Orleans, besides being sorry for the humming-birds! Jack Spratt loved the lean, and his wife ate up the fat. The world is full of dishes fit for a king, by way of tummy, heart and head, and you can take your choice.

For the one who can find no real food for the head in the young modernist story-teller there is always, standing smiling in the shadow, alive though gone, Dickens, Hugo, Fielding, Stevenson and many another of that hardy-worded, meaty crew. And around you the young ones write for the reader who never harks back.

And the dishes for emotional hunger—kind heaven, how many there are of them—a child's love; a mountain top; the desert and the sea; the picture world; one's own fireside; the face of a dearly loved friend after years; memories of perfect hours here and there like gilt thread showing its spark through a sober cloth; a lover's hand and smile; one's mother's face; the soar of a sky-reaching building; music in the twilight—and on and on. Something for every soul.

Cupid's favorite Dainty Dish is an airy person called the Nineteen Thirty-Three Girl. He thinks she's a "bird." One delicate morsel.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Keep Purpose in Mind

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me just what to say and how to say it when presenting a gift to a man in a fraternal organization. W.

It is somewhat difficult to answer your question without knowing more about the occasion. But the thing to keep in mind is to interpret the reason for the gift.

The Man Writes First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There is one thing about friendships made in the summer that puzzles me very much. I am a young lady of twenty-three and spend my vacations the way most girls do, at summer resorts. When a girl, during her vacation at a summer place, meets a young man and they become such good friends that they agree to correspond, which should be the first to write?

BABARA.

The man should take the initiative in this . . . as in most matters between men and women. For a girl to write first, after a man has asked for the privilege of writing to her, would certainly make her appear over-anxious. And misplaced enthusiasm of this kind can so easily be misinterpreted.

Acknowledging Hospitality

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I have been out with a young lady a few times and now she has asked me if I would accompany her to a show given by a school. She has bought the tickets and I want to know if it would be proper for me to offer to pay her for them? I believe they cost a few dollars and I don't like to have her spend that much money.

2—If I don't pay for them, how could I make up for them in some other way?

JIMMY.

1—If a young lady invites a young man to accompany her to an entertainment given by some organization with which she is connected, it is the best form for her to get the tickets, which is one element of her hostessship. Now, since this is her party, you should accept this hospitality, as you would accept an invitation to dinner at her home—by telling her of your appreciation of her generous thought for you and thanking her for the happy time that you have had. You should not offer to pay for the tickets, for I am sure that she would not like to have you do this.

2—There are many gallant "beau" details of the evening that you could do to show her that you are sensitive to her generosity and friendliness. Why not send her, on the afternoon of the festivity, a beautifully made corsage for her to carry? Have it made small, but beautiful—one orchid, or a spray of orchids alone, or combined with some appropriate flowers, is easy to carry. Take special care to be the perfect "cavalier" and guest, as I am sure you will, since you show such fine spirit in your letter. If you wish to make a "special added" gesture, you might send her a box of candy the next day or so, with your card, or a note expressing your thanks.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

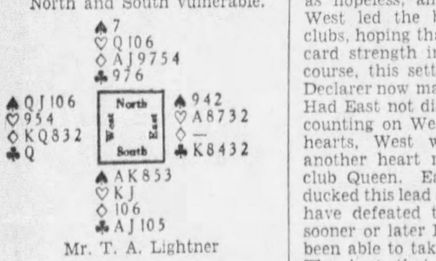
Expert Play

Some very fine Bridge is played in the Rubber games in the experts' room of a certain club in New York. Here are assembled weekly the players who are known throughout America for their skill not only as players, but as analysts and writers.

Recently I saw Mr. Theodore A. Lightner play a doubled contract of three notrump, taking instant advantage of a slight defensive slip, the slip being only in the matter of choosing a discard. The hand was:

South, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



Mr. T. A. Lightner

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	2 ♡
2 NT	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♠	Double	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

West's Opening lead was the heart 9 in response to his partner's bid. East, of course, played a small heart, having no sure re-entry, and South won with the King. Mr. Lightner then led the Ten of diamonds, which was covered by West and won with the Ace in Dummy. When East failed to follow, South had a very difficult problem. As a matter of fact, the hand could not be made against perfect defense.

The singleton spade was led from Dummy and won by Mr. Lightner, who then led another diamond up to the length in Dummy. West played the King of diamonds, and East, having discarded a small spade on the first diamond lead, now discarded a heart on the second. West construed this as a definite order to abandon the heart suit as hopeless, and at this point West led the blank Queen of clubs, hoping that East had top-card strength in that suit. Of course, this settled the matter; Declarer now made his contract. Had East not discarded a heart, counting on West to hold three hearts, West would have led another heart rather than the club Queen. East should have ducked this lead also. This would have defeated the contract, as sooner or later East would have been able to take 3 heart tricks. The best that Declarer could have made in this case would have been two hearts, three diamonds, two spades and the Ace of clubs.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner has bid one club. What do you respond, holding ♠ K 8 3 ♡ Q 7 4 ◇ 8 7 6 4 ♣ 8 3 2

Answer: Pass. The hand contains but 1 honor-trick and there is no compensating distribution.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Alarmed by Command of Gangster

"Oh! No! No!"

Marion's voice was almost a scream in her protest against Nick's announcement that he meant to take me along with him, leaving Marion, Ronald, and the bound, inert body of Charles Owen in the shelter of the big tree at the center of the meadow where he had brought them. And the next instant with a mighty effort, Ronald wrenched himself upward to a sitting position, and gasped out, "Never! You must not go with him, Aunt Madge!"

Inwardly I shared their terror. It took every bit of will power I possessed to keep from echoing their panic-stricken cries, or from taking to my heels in wild unreasoning flight. But my varied and bizarre experiences as an associate of Lillian and my father in secret diplomatic work have taught me to know—and face—reality when I see it, and I knew that there was no other course open to me at the moment but to acquiesce with apparent cheerfulness to Nick's demand.

We had found Marion and rescued her from Charles Owen. That was an accomplished fact. I did not believe that the henchmen of Jerry with whom Tony was still exchanging scattered shots, had sufficient interest in Owen to try to hunt him or his quarry, even if they won the revolver battle. He had left the car of his own volition. What happened to him after that was no concern of theirs. I was sure this would be their reasoning, confident also that Marion and Ronald would be comparatively safe where they were until Dicky and Hugh should locate them, and either descend themselves to their rescue, or direct others to them. I had faith in the skill with which Nick had trussed and gagged Owen.

FLIERS MOVE AWAY

As for myself, I dared not look a second beyond the present. I meant to keep my wits about me, to pit every bit of intelligence and training I possessed against the ruthless man who stood waiting for me, who, I knew, would wait only a second or two longer. Surely Dicky and Hugh hovering so near me would not——

With a stifled little gasp I broke that train of thought as I realized that the auto-gyro was no longer hovering above us, was instead, whirring away in the direction from which we had come. What that maneuver meant, I had no idea, but I knew there was one thing upon which I could wager my life. Dicky and Hugh knew approximately where we were. They were leaving our vicinity only because some angle of their plan of rescue demanded that they go. But I did not doubt that they would be back soon.

NICK AGREES

So it was that I turned to Nick with an appearance of cheerful acquiescence.

"Of course I will go with you," I said, "but you must give me time to talk to this little girl here. She has been very much frightened, and my going will terrify her still more. Please go out of hearing while I talk to her. Then I shall be ready to go with you."

He did not answer for a second. Then he gave the low chuckle I so hated.

"You've sure got the old nerve with you, Baby," he said. "I'll fall for it, though. But first let's get lil' sister and her boy friend fixed up."

He stooped and picked up Ronald in his arms effortless.

"Bring lil' sister over here with you," he directed me, and carried Ronald close to the big tree.

I picked up the blankets with which Marion had been swathed, and slipping my other arm around her, I led her to the tree.

"Wait just a second," I said, spreading one of the blankets down beneath the tree.

"Sit down on this, Marion," I commanded, "with your back against the tree, and take Ronald's head in your lap as you did before. Put him down here, please," I addressed Nick.

"O. K. Babe." He chuckled again as he obeyed me. I threw a corner of the blanket over Ronald, and then folded the other and put it behind Marion's head.

"Please go away now, as you promised," I said to Nick.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

In the news is the fact that printed frocks are scoring. A smart dinner frock is of mousseline de soie in a plaid print of black, white and red. Neckline and sleeves are formed of strips of the material padded to almost roll-like proportions.

A sure bet is the white lace frock with colored touches. A lovely dinner frock is fashioned of very heavy white lace in a leaf pattern. The bodice is slit up the back from waist to neckline. It is worn with Bordeaux red satin slippers, matching the belt of the frock.

Violets bloom in glorious profusion on a new evening ensemble. The frock and short cape are of mauve pink heavy sheer. The cape is edged with a border made of tiny satin violets massed together in band formation. A bunch of the flowers is at the waist of the gown.

Hide beneath a large hat this Summer, for a large hat with wide brim is comfortable as well as being most attractive. A lovely advance model is done in a medium straw in a deep violet tone. The high crown is banded with purple and violet ribbon, while a touch of turquoise blue shows in the leaves that mark the cluster of purple grapes used to trim the hat, high on the center front of the crown.

CROSS-STITCH MOTTO

PATTERN NO. 447 By Laura Wheeler

Our fondness for quaint cross-stitch mottoes is handed down to us from early American days. Like the samplers of olden times these mottoes have a decorative value that is added to by the subdued colors used to embroider them. This motto, which is 11x15 inches, is typical of many of those used in times past. Besides the transfer pattern of the design, the pattern includes detailed directions for the distribution of the colors, and the framing of the embroidered picture.

Send 10c for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A red nose is caused by digestive disturbances; it is a sign that the diet is not suitable, that digestive organs are under a strain. Delete salty, highly spiced and rich foods, especially pastries and gravies. Drink six glasses of water a day. Keep the intestinal tract active. At night anoint the cerise nez with ointment of zinc oxide; don't massage.

Are you down hearted? Then give your lungs a feast of fresh air. Wonderful how that simple indulgence will scare off the worry bugs. Get out for a two-mile walk, and be brisk about it. Step firmly on the ball and heel of the foot, let arms swing naturally, keep the chest inflated. In half an hour the world and you will have changed for the better.

The handle of a silver tablespoon will serve as a patter, knock down the adipose structure of an extra chin. Anoint the skin surface with a heavy cream, get in some good sound slaps. Pick up the flesh between finger and thumb, rolling briskly. This treatment breaks down fat cells. Don't fail to follow along with the cold compress or friction with ice.

When feet smart and burn, bathe with tepid water to which ordinary baking soda has been added. Dry gently, massage with cold cream, rubbing it in for 10 or 15 minutes. Then wrap the feet in large Turkish towels which have been wrung out of cold water. Do this at night. In the morning massage with borated talcum. Rinse hosiery in a solution of borax.

How to Keep Well

New Serum for Typhus Discovered

In my mail today I received two unusual letters. One letter requested information about typhus fever. The other was a report of recent work on this disease conducted by the United States public health service and the Mexican government. Announcement was made of the discovery of a serum which protects against a certain form of typhus fever.

Dr. Copeland

This is of special interest to the inhabitants of Mexico and the citizens of the southern states. In this territory typhus fever is still prevalent.

This is one of the most deadly diseases known to mankind. It is always associated with filth and unhygienic surroundings. It was especially prevalent when little was known about sanitation and wretched living conditions were common.

Typhus fever is often confused with typhoid fever. But the diseases are quite different and run different courses. Typhus fever is carried by a germ found in rats. It is carried from one rat to another by rat lice and fleas. It is transmitted to human's by fleas.

Typhoid fever is caused by a germ called the "bacillus typhyosus." This is found in contaminated food, milk and water supplies. Like typhus fever, the disease at one time was prevalent throughout the world. Fortunately, we have a vaccine called the typhoid vaccine which prevents the disease. Due to proper supervision of food, water and milk and the use of typhoid vaccine, the disease is now rarely encountered.

For many years experimental research has endeavored to discover a vaccine for typhus fever similar to the vaccine successfully used against typhoid fever. It is hoped that the announcement of the new typhus fever vaccine will aid in the eradication of this disease.

Of course typhus fever can be prevented by improvement in social conditions and the destruction of dark, crowded tenements and unsanitary homes. Like many other diseases, the prevention of typhus fever is largely a matter of personal cleanliness. It is for this reason that the disease has greatly decreased as civilization and education have spread over the face of the earth.

Let us hope for the continued success of those scientists who daily labor in their efforts to make this world a cleaner and safer place in which to live. Their success will lead to the ultimate wiping out of typhus fever and other dreaded diseases.

Household Hints

When caramelizing sugar for frosting, a sauce or a filling do not have your fire too hot, or your blaze too high.

When the bristles of hairbrushes have lost their stiffness add a teaspoon of alum to the rinsing water when washing them.

Silk curtains should not be steeped before washing, as this causes silk to harden. First shake them to remove any dust, then wash in warm water and soap flakes. When the material is clean, rinse in warm water, and finally in cold water to which has been added methylated spirit in the proportion of one tablespoon to half a tub of water. Iron while wet.

Silk garments should be washed and rinsed in warm—not hot—water. Iron with a warm (instead of a hot) iron, as direct heat rots the threads.

Remove the burnt jelly or jam to a clean pot, add a cut-up potato and continue boiling as before. The taste of the potato will not be noticed and neither will the burnt jelly.

To keep flowers fresh longer, first slice at an angle the tips of the stems. Pull off the bottom leaves and on roses scrape a bit of the skin near the end. At night wrap them in a wet newspaper, put in a vase of fresh water and set in the ice box. The flowers will last twice as long as otherwise.

Children's Homework

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A college professor said recently that many of the failures in his school were due to the fact that the young people could not concentrate. They could sit quietly and stare at a book, but their minds were everywhere else.

It seems a far cry from infancy to college days, yet infancy is the time to begin teaching your child to concentrate upon what he is doing.

Take, for instance, the baby. He plays on the floor, intent upon putting a small box in a larger one. Mother, eager to speed his development, shoves a rattle into his hands and demands that he perform with the rattle. Result, irritation, chalked up against an hereditary bad temper, usually. In reality it is the reaction to frustration—to being hampered in experiencing a new discovery. Babies, to be sure, will concentrate for shorter periods than older children, but they will do it if we don't insist upon diverting their attention too often.

We ruin the powers of concentration in the older child when we needlessly interrupt his play, usually to run an errand or attend to some household task. These tasks should be done in a time allotted for them and the play-period should be not only free from interruption but free from the fear of interruption, which is just as damaging to powers of concentration.

As to school work, it is a mystery to me how the majority of children accomplish anything in the line of memorizing, thinking generally, or doing logical figuring in a room crowded with people talking, radio blaring, dog barking, telephone ringing, bad light and usually no regard whatever for the fact that he is trying to think of one thing—trying to concentrate.

Thus I think that the causes of powerlessness to concentrate in the college student, date back to interruptions of play in infancy, thoughtless distractions and silly demands during their play hours. Hence the value of a room where they may study or play undisturbed.

Credo

My hope:
That when I am
Insensate to your touch
I will have no regrets for things
Undone.

My wish:
When I am cold
That you may never say

My prayer
Is daily this:
Before my lips are dumb
I will have left no lovely song
Unsung.

Say It Isn't Soph!

Sophie Tucker, who is not La Guinan's age or weight, was among the guests at the College Inn, in the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, where Bernie is the alleged master of ceremonies.

She got up to leave and the crowd groaned.

"Don't go!" they yelled.

"I am sorry," apologized Sophie, "I have to. I'm going to play strip poker!"

After the howl that followed subsided, Sophie niftied:

"Oh, it isn't really gambling. You get your clothes back!"

I'll Say!

The honeymoon is positively over, adds Will Goldberg, when he starts kissing her with his eyes open!

Of Course!

The night before the Quatz' Arts Ball at the World's Fair was scheduled, Texas Guinan was distressed. She was going as a pirate and she moaned long and loud because she "couldn't find the proper costume!"

"Why," heckled a sucker, "change your dress?"

Newspaperman Stuff

It was in the Chicago American editor's office the other afternoon, and Arthur Brisbane, who has been wrecking typewriters and dictaphones for decades, was preparing his column on the World's Fair.

Victor Watson, who governs the Herald-Examiner in the same city, brought your New York correspondent upstairs to meet the most famous columnist in the world.

"Oh, not now," we told Watson, "I hate it when anybody bothers me when I'm working."

At least eight others in the room were babbling.

Watson, however, interrupted Mr. Brisbane, who was affable about the intrusion.

"Please," we remarked, "go back to your work. I know just what that is!"

"No, you don't!" thundered the veteran editorial expert, with mock sternness, "you won't know until you've been at it for 40 years!"

Heaven forbid!

Incidentally

Later at the Congress Hotel as the guests of Vincent Lopez, Mr. Brisbane and your tourist were enchanted by the lovely melodies and the 51 beauties selected by a newspaper as the best lookers in the world at a Century of Progress.

For a change we listened attentively while the famous newspaperman (who began at $15 a week and now columns for $260,000 a year!) spellbound us with fascinating stories about the Fourth Estate, John L. Sullivan, William Randolph Hearst and others.

If M. H. Aylesworth or Wm. Paley, the chiefs of the radio networks, bag Brisbane for the hook-up—they will be accomplishing something to cheer about. Brisbane's racy rat-a-tat-tattling on national doings or any subject, for that matter, would attract a great audience.

He speaks swiftly and with power. He has radio "It." His diction is easy on the ear and he makes you believe what he says. The reason he has spurned lucrative offers, he said, is that he fears the younger generation won't "take" to him.

He's afraid, too, that because he has dictated his stuff for so long, that on the air he would punctuate his wordage with: Comma, period, semi-colon" or "apostrophe!"

I'm a chump suggesting Brisbane for the air. He'd be genuine opposition.

Add Similes

Ben Hecht's: "His smile was unduly persistent—like a ballet dancer's."

By Way of Report

Funny that nobody has pointed out this irony. Many of the people who were favored by J. P. Morgan with tips "because we were thinking of you" lost fortunes on them!

This story is being revived on the most famous banker of them all. A friend in distress met Morgan near Wall street one day. While they were ankling through Wall street, the friend in need told Morgan his troubles and asked for a loan. Morgan listened but said nothing. After walking for several blocks, the friend glumly said:

"I see you won't do anything for me—goodbye."

"You've walked the whole length of Wall street with me," replied Morgan, "go into any of these places—and you'll find your credit is good."

Someone Had A Clever Idea

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

In the boardinghouse, after a week of varied menus, a mysterious dish would make its appearance which the landlady's enemies called hash, but which her friends knew as "Rosemary for remembrance." Something like that hovers over "International House" at the Penn Theater. The director must have picked up everybody on the lot and given them all something to do. The background is China, but it might be Alaska or Sewickley. Every comedian who had a laugh, every girl who could make you look twice, are quarantined in the hotel, where George Burns is doctor and Gracie Allen, nurse. Mary Roberts Rinehart used this quarantine idea in "Seven Days," but it's not used up. It gives W. C. Fields an opportunity to do some rollicking comedy, and Peggy Hopkins Joyce has a chance to do some expert vamping.

How to work in Rudy Vallee, Baby Rose Marie, Stoopnagle and Budd, and Cab Calloway with his orchestra is a problem solved by the introduction of a Chinese scientist, who has invented television apparatus. He offers to show anyone the Six Day Bicycle Race, but always pushes the wrong button and we see the other acts. Edmund Breese, that fine old actor, does nobly as the Chinese sage. But Allen and Burns are the fun-makers supreme who keep the audience in a whirl of laughs.

It is a mad melange of nonsense and novelty—as appetizing as real hash and as hard to follow as relativity. And it is set off by two of the most amusing short comics recently on view, Zasu Pitts and Thelma Todd go to a bargain scrimmage and emerge alive, only to meet fresh troubles at home. The watch in the ice cream is one of the most uproarious episodes these two unfortunate ladies have ever been in. Then if you want real pathos, Mickey Mouse supplies it with Pluto rescuing a litter of kittens from drowning in a well. The devil and conscience both prompt the poor dog, but virtue triumphs, the kittens are saved, and Pluto earns the gold medal of the Animal Rescue League.

After which everybody in the audience went home well satisfied with the whole show from Peggy Joyce to Bela Lugosi.

Dunn, Eilers In Warner

By MARGARET RUSSELL

Sally Eilers and James Dunn are teamed together again in the Warner in "Hold Me Tight." As Molly and Chuck, they are two young things caught in the web of a big city in a story that revolves about a big department store. They get married and he loses his job.

Being a big he-man he doesn't like to be a stay-at-home while his wife pays the rent. After he burns the biscuit he walks out. "I'll come back when I can bring a pay envelope," says the proud but unemployed hero.

There is a villain in the piece. He's Dolan, the store detective, who casts a longing eye on Molly. Comedy and tragedy are furnished by the inimitable Frank McHugh as Billy, the indolent job-shy husband of Dottie, a fellow employe of Molly in the big store.

After tramping the streets for days and days, Chuck falls into a criminal set-up, engineered by Dolan. But Dolan figured without the spirited Molly. Is she a scrapper? And so is friend husband. Can that man fight?

The good-for-nothing Billy comes through in a tight spot, for a wonder, and the villain gets his just dues. Billy, who would rather be president, is offered a job in the shipping department by the new manager. Guess who? Yes, it's good old Chuck.

Race Crashes On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Pictures of the accidents that sent three men to their deaths during the Indianapolis automobile classic are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Probably the most spectacular pictures ever made are those that show the car driven by Malcolm Fox, of New Jersey, skidding on a high turn. Almost immediately Lester Spangler and his mechanic Jordan, come tearing into the picture at a speed of 120 miles an hour, and plunges into Fox's car. Other scenes of the race include Lou Meyer, of California, winning the classic for the second time. The Globe Trotter graphically describes the race.

President Roosevelt is strong for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, according to Postmaster General Farley, who says money now going to bootleggers and racketeers will go a long way towards balancing the budget.

Dr. C. L. Snyder, of South Bend, Ind., demonstrates a one-wing airplane he has invented.

The great Memorial Day parade in New York City is shown. Twenty-six Civil War veterans, the youngest 84 years old, have the place of honor among the 20,000 marchers.

(Note: Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.)

Chester Morris Gets Chance

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 3.—Released at last from that Roland West contract, Chester Morris has a head start towards regaining the screen prestige he enjoyed after "Alibi" and other early talkies. Chester has signed with Universal and will play the romantic lead in "The Invisible Man."

Despite some talk to the contrary, Boris Karloff still stands to play the title role in the H. G. Wells novel. If there is a hitch, it will be over his option, which comes due Sunday. All companies are battling to keep from boosting salaries.

Anyway, Chester is set for the Wells story. He is one of the few American actors to land a featured spot in a James Whale picture. Whale made up for this, however, by sending the novel all the way to England for R. C. Sheriff to put in final shape for the screen.

After "The Invisible Man" Carl Laemmle, Jr., has other plans for Chester. The future looks bright for him.

FRANK MORGAN AND MYRNA LOY, OF "WHEN LADIES MEET" CAST, CONGRATULATE THIS PROUD YOUNG MOTHER

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"YOU SEEM to enjoy prison stuff with a touch of irony," writes McMafin, "so here is one that should surely strike your fancy. The guy I'm telling you about occupied a cell near me for almost a year and I grew to know him pretty well.

"He was doing a year for passing phony checks. He was a likeable, easy-going bird and was plenty popular around the prison. Before stepping out of this joint about three months ago, he confided to me that he was through with anything pertaining to larceny.

"'Larceny,' he chirped, 'is strictly for those mugs who have neither talent nor ability. With me it's a different story.

"'I've had a good education. I've written a few articles, and I've sold them. So why should I be sucker enough to take chances in the future when I can earn a living legitimately?'

"Well, Mark, you've heard that story a thousand times—and so have I. But if ever a man seemed to be sincere, this was the chap. He left the jail with the best wishes of us all. And I really felt that he was one guy who was going straight from that day on.

"Yesterday morning, however, he was back with us again on a new rap. And as soon as I got the chance, I asked him what had happened and why he hadn't kept to the straight and narrow.

"His reply was a classic.

"'Pal,' he responded, 'I had the best intentions in the world. After I got out of here, I spent almost two months in writing and getting my material together. Then I brought the stuff to a public stenographer so that it could be typed and sent to a publisher.'

"I looked at him.

"'Well,' I said, 'they can't arrest you for that, can they?'

"'No,' he retorted, 'they can't. But here's where I made a sap of myself. After the manuscripts were typed, the stenographer wanted her money.

"'Its funny, but I had stayed straight to write that stuff, and now I was finished. So I couldn't resist the temptation to pay her off with a phony check!'" . . .

"IT ACTUALLY happened on Broadway the other day," writes Bill Franklin, "to two chaps whom you know well. I'll call one Joe and the other Dave, because those are their real names.

"Dave met Joe in a restaurant and tapped him on the shoulder.

"'Say, Joe,' he said, 'I'm not doing so well these days, and I need all the dough I can get. You've owed me 50 bucks for two years and I'm wondering if you can pay me back now?'

"Joe dug into his pocket and drew out a long list of names. He ran his finger all the way down the list and stopped near the bottom. Then he wagged his head.

"'You're right, Dave,' he admitted. 'Your name is on my list for 50 bucks. I owe it to you all right. But I can't pay you now.'

"Dave began to argue, but Joe interrupted quickly.

"'Tell you what I will do though, Dave,' he cried. 'You're a good scout and I want to help you. You lend me $10 more and I'll move you up 5 places on my list!'" . . .

"IT'S NEW to Boston, Mark," writes Mary F. Phelps, "although it may be old to New York. But old, or new, here it is:

"DEAR MARK," writes Louis Fernandez, "This letter isn't really meant as a form of criticism, but don't you ever feel that it might be well to give the readers a bit of variety ever now and then?

"Take my advice and get away from doctors, speakeasies and husbands who can't get along with—or without—their wives. Don't keep picking on chorus girls for your sob stories. Leave the yarns about the stage door Johnnies alone. Forget about the suicides and don't tackle sport angles because that's not in your field.

"Why write prison stuff? It only makes us readers feel sorry for those boys behind the bars. Don't corrupt our morals by writing about pickpockets. And above all, leave the racketeers out of your column."

Thank you very much, Mr. Fernandez. Do you mind if I go on using my own name? . . .

"He was a brute of a man," writes Eli Lloyd Hoffman. "Fully six feet-four, he towered head and shoulders above the angry mob he was facing—alone. Without aid, he faced a hundred—his shoulders squared, never for an instant giving ground.

"The onrushing mob swept dangerously close, conflicting emotions on their faces—but a sudden sweeping gesture of his hand sent them all scurrying back to safety. Not a step did he take toward them. One or two were a little slow in obeying that gestured command. To those he spoke harshly, and they almost fell over themselves in their hasty retreat.

"A loot, almost of disdain, flittered across his forceful face as he defiantly turned his back on the crowd. And then, with a shrill blast of his traffic whistle, he started the double line of automobiles forward!"...

"Think you know some of the most impossible people in the world?" writes Fred Jones, of San Mateo, Val. "Well, maybe you do. But we've got a guy out here who tops them all.

Two Pictures In Davis

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

A "wise guy" changes to a "sucker" in "The Life of Jimmy Dolan," boxing show with plenty of punch in and outside the ring, in the Davis and Sheridan Square.

A murder, topping the big fight that made him champion, forces Doug Fairbanks, Jr., the hard-boiled boxer, to "hit for the hills" under an assumed name. He ends up on a farm where Loretta Young and Aline MacMahon are taking care of kids for charity. A new idea to Doug and Loretta makes him like it. He decides to fight a big bruiser to lift the mortgage. The catch is that Doug's a "south paw," and the detective on his trail will know his style. If he fights, it'll mean the chair. Go on from there, folks.

Guy Kibbee turns in a fine piece of acting as the detective in a slight and pathetic sub-plot. It's a good, clean-cut, exciting show.

Frank McHugh and Allen Jenkins, comedy team, provide the main interest in the co-feature, "Tomorrow at 7," a murder mystery. Following each other in quick succession, there are enough murders to make you a bit calloused. It's not surprising to find insanity the cause. Chester Morris does a hero-detective act opposite Vivienne Osborne. There are some exciting spots.

Lyon, Colbert Starred in Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"I Cover the Waterfront," featuring Ben Lyon, Claudette Colbert and Ernest Torrence on the Stanley screen, is an interesting contribution to cycle of films having a newspaper angle. It is a departure from the usual run, in that the scene of action lies outside the editorial office and the fact that those symbols of journalism, the roaring press, the screaming headline and the significant paragraph, are only briefly incidental.

It is the story of a newshound running down a story, a waterfront reporter, who knows in his heart that a certain man is responsible for smuggling Chinese into the United States. The man is so clever that the reporter's tips disgust both the city editor and the officers who investigate. The part of the smuggler is played by Ernest Torrence. He has a daughter, and she, of course, would be Miss Colbert.

If the above brief statement of the situation that forms the basis of the action makes the answer appear obvious, it should not detract from the interest in the tale, which is largely in the detail, with a wealth of waterfront atmosphere, and the drama that necessarily is part of the lives of those engaged in dangerous occupations. For one of the thrills there is the harpooning of a huge shark. For comedy there is one of these tippling newspapermen without which no screen story about the fourth estate can be complete.

The photoplay takes its title from a book written by an actual waterfront reporter, but the story is entirely Hollywood, combining both the dramatic and romantic in a plausible manner. It is well played by all three principals, Lyon having a better role than he's had in any recent vehicle.

REVAMPED PIRATES FACE REDS IN DOUBLEHEADER

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Pirate Shifts Explained. Benching of Slumpers.
Dodger Changes Futile Thorpe Rival Recalled.
Ruel Improves Hadley. Big Polo Season Looms.

AVOIDS BUNCHING LEFT-HAND HITTERS

FROM A GROUP of fans comes the query as to why, in rearranging the Pirate batting order, Manager George Gibson took the club's only .300 hitter, Pie Traynor, out of the clean-up position and moved him to the third hole, replacing him with Paul Waner in the fourth notch. The explanation is that Gibby wished to avoid having three left-hand hitters in succession at the top of the batting order, as would have resulted if Tryanor had continued to hit fourth, with Floyd Vaughan replacing Freddie Lindstrom in second place.

Pie Traynor

It is true that the Bucs used the triple southside combination of Waner, Vaughan and Waner at the top of the clouting order last season, but it will be recalled that while presenting that array the locals lost the great majority of the games in which they were opposed by left-hand pitchers. This year, averting the bringing together of three left-hand swingers anywhere in the order, the Pirates have lost only four games to southpaws, driving one of the winners to cover before the finish and winning 10 other games in which fork-handers started. Traynor still will have plenty of opportunities to knock in runs while hitting third. Some of the best hitters in the majors bat in that position, including Ruth, Klein, Ott, Bottomley, Frederick, Goslin, Gehringer and Bob Johnson.

SINCE MAX CAREY assumed the management of the Dodgers for 1932 he has made over the club almost entirely. He has obtained a flock of new players in Stripp, Cuccinello, Wilson, Jordan, Sukeforth, Taylor, Beck, Benge, Carroll, Judge, Outen, Ryan and Flowers.

The only old players still retained are O'Doul, Frederick, Wright, Bissonette, Lopez, Clark, Heimach, Mungo, Shaute and Thurston. And yet the club isn't winning at a rate to promise a strong pennant bid.

SIX YEARS AGO, when the White Sox went on their first Eastern trip they had won 31 games against 17 defeats and thought they were pennant bound. But the Yankees knocked them for a loop and the Pale Hose never recovered. They finished fifth.

This season they had a similar experience in New York, losing three games in a row to the Yanks after winning the opener. But there will hardly be the same after effects. With Simmons, Dykes, Haas, Appling, Hayes and the rest, the Chisox look to have too much strength and too much fight to crack up right away.

LAST SEASON, FOR the White Sox and Browns, Bump Hadley lost more games than any other pitcher in either major league, being charged with 21 defeats. He also gave the most bases on balls, 171. But this year he has shown a great change for the better. Already he has won half as many victories as he scored during all of 1932, and several of his slab performances for the Browns have been brilliant, including a three-hit shutout against the White Sox. Back of Hadley's improved pitching is the cunning of Muddy Ruel, the St. Louis club's spare backstop. Ruel knows batters as few other players in the American League know them. Much of the success of former Washington teams was credited to Muddy, and in St. Louis the little veteran is recognized as having been the main factor in making Hadley a better pitcher. Ruel also worked with Hadley in Washington, but did not agree always with what Bump did on the mound. This year, he seems to have won the pitcher over to his way of doing things and the result is seen in Hadley's greatly improved record.

Muddy Ruel

RECENTLY BUCKY HARRIS, Ruel's old manager in Washington and later in Detroit, was chatting about Muddy. "Ruel played a part in Fred Marberry's great relief pitching for Washington," Harris said. "Marberry did little warming up. He would walk to the bullpen and throw half a dozen balls to his catcher. His foot would go over his head, just for the effect it would have on the opposing batters on the bench.

"Once he got the nod to go in, Marberry was ready. That was when Ruel helped with his smart acting. As soon as Marberry started to take the five warm-up pitches, Ruel would signal for smoke, and when the ball struck his glove he would fall backward as though unable to hold the speed of the pitch. That had the desired effect of intimidating the batters, as is shown by the fact that Marberry threw fewer pitches than any other mop-up man in the game."

THE POLICY OF benching a good ball player when he runs into a little slump is opposed by Bill Terry. The Giant manager thinks that is the time to leave him in there, to have patience with him and encourage him until he recovers his grip.

Terry says he knows from experience that it takes a lot of confidence out of a player to be benched for a bad spell. Bill's theory is that the best thing to do is to leave him in there until he works himself out of the slump, and usually, he says, that will not take long.

DISCUSSIONS OF THE greatest all-around athletes of all time led Richard Wyckoff to recall one of the almost forgotten stars of the past, the late William E. Quinn, who coached at Harvard from 1906 until 1913. Wyckoff insists that Quinn could have defeated Martin Sheridan and that he deserved to be ranked very close to Jim Thorpe. Quinn did 6 feet 2 inches in the high jump, 12 feet in the pole vault, 24 feet in the broad jump, 161 feet with the 16-pound hammer, 41 feet with the 16-pound shot, and could run 100 yards in 10.6 seconds and do the high hurdles in 15.6.

THE ELECTION OF a coxswain as captain of a college rowing crew is a rarity, and it made history at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis when V. H. Krulak, of Denver, recently was the recipient of that honor.

An observing critic remarks that Krulak thus becomes captain of the Navy boat while only a coxswain and before being graduated. Then, upon his graduation, he will step down and become merely an ensign on another Navy boat.

LEFT-HANDED DAVID I. M'CAHILL, JR., the young collegiate star of local polo circles, is seen in action for the first time in the outdoor season in this afternoon's opener. The inaugural outdoor contest at the Squaw Run field of the Pittsburgh Polo and Riding Association finds 10 of the district's leading players participating.

D. I. McCahill, Jr.

Teamed with young McCahill are his father, David I. McCahill, Sr., George Vang and Lieut. Lucius Clay. They oppose Paul Mazuzun, Art Aaron, Howard Adams and Randolph Milholland. On the substitute list are William Diebold, James Groyden, James Drake, Mose Kline and King McCreery.

A BIG OUDOOR season looms for polo in this section, continuing the game's remarkable advance here in popularity and quality of play. Cleveland, Dayton and Lexington will be among the teams to meet the local riders at the Squaw Run field during the summer. A policy of free games for all is to be carried out, excepting when a team from outside the district is being met, and then the admission fee will be only enough to pay the expenses of the visitors. The 15 players connected with the local association have 25 ponies stabled at the Squaw Run field, sufficient mounts to equip any outside team that may be scheduled. Among the home players are four one-goal men, handicaped by the United States Polo Association. In difficult contests the local players can present a lineup composed of the younger McCahill, Mazuzun, Adams and Vang, all one-goal men, or a four-goal handicap team.

Vines Eliminated By Sidney Wood

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 3.—(AP.)—Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York, eliminated Ellsworth Vines, National and Wimbledon champion, in the semi-finals of the Dixie invitation tennis tournament yesterday. The scores were 2-6, 1-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

George Lott, Chicago ace, the other finalist, eliminated Cliff Sutter, of New Orleans, seeded No. 2, in another semi-finals match almost as packed with thrills.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Should the Pirates go to town this afternoon in their doubleheader with the Reds they would be leading the National League pack by nightfall. Acting Manager Jewel Ens and the Reds landed in the city this morning to find a peeved bunch of Buccaneer waiting with cutlasses and sabers.

The Buccos are peeved as a result of a run of poor play which had the effect of knocking them from the top position of the league. The high-flyin' Redbirds have displaced them, but the margin is so small it can be changed in a few hours.

Manager Gibson had two high-grade sharpshooters primed for the ordeal of the afternoon. Larry French and Bill Swift will heckle the Reds, who are likely to go to work behind Eppa Jeppa Rixey and Si Johnson.

TWO DOUBLEHEADERS

Eppa Jeppa is the only Red hurler to land a triumph over the Pirates in the seven combats staged between the two teams. The veteran lefthander turned back our boys in Cincinnati last Sunday.

The next 36 hours are fraught with much significance to the Pirates. They are slated for another doubleheader tomorrow, but they must rush all the way to Chicago to stage this dual bill. The Buccos will remain over in the World's Fair city until Wednesday night, four games being slated with the Bears.

THIRD PLACE BECKONS

A double victory by the Pirates today would enable them to overthrow the St. Louis Pretenders regardless of the outcome of the clash in Chicago between the Cardinals and Cubs. Bill Terry's Giants copped a victory yesterday and they are only one game below the Pirates which also means that it is possible for the Pirates to fall into third place today.

Boss Gibson has a new lineup ready to show the Reds. The same players will participate in the action today, but the order to going to the plate has been changed. The most important switch in the order takes Fred Lindstrom from second place to the fifth notch. Fred has been in a pronounced batting slump.

Fans May Donate 'Wagner Day' Cash

Admirers and friends of Honus Wagner who feel they would like to contribute cash to the Honus Wagner Day fund may do so in a convenient way. Attorney Joseph N. Mackrell, general chairman of the committee, today announced contributions would be welcomed by the committee treasurer. The treasurer is Carl W. Ehni, of the Oakland branch of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Savings and Trust Company, and the donations should be sent to Ehni at the above address.

Chairman Mackrell stated that various members of the committees had been asked by fans for information on this score.

FIGHT ARENAS BOOK AHEAD

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

With the North Braddock Bowl having lost its date for next Wednesday night because of the defection of Johnny Risko as the opponent of Steve Hamas, and the inability of the club to arrange a new match within the five-day limit for substitutions set by the Boxing Commission, Pittsburgh will have only two professional boxing shows next week, the Tommy Paul-Jackie Wilson return pairing at Hickey Park, Millvale, on Monday night, and the Vince Dundee-Frankie Goosby pairing at the Arena, on the North Side, on Thursday.

Incidentally, it is revealed that both of the latter clubs are booked for three shows ahead.

FREEMAN VS. ALABAM'

For its windup one week from Monday, the Hickey Park management has signed Tommy Freeman, former welterweight champion, who recently gave Ted Yarosz a hard battle in its ring, against the Alabama Kid, Negro middleweight, of Dover, O., and Monday, June 19, will see Promoter Hernon offering the postponed match between Tony Herrera and Lew Massey, orginally set for last week and set back when Massey injured his eye in a bout with Tony Falco in Philadelphia. Herrera, incidentally, boxes Wesley Ramey again in Grand Rapids next Wednesday night.

On Thursday night of next week, the Arena presents Seaman Watson, the British featherweight champion, and Georgie Riley, Detroit Negro, who worked out with Watson when the latter was training for his recent bout for the world title against Kid Chocolate in New York, and gained the idea from those gymnasium engagements that he is the Seaman's master.

FIVE-ROUND PRELIMS

The following Thursday brings the postponed meeting between Petey Sarron, of Birmingham, Ala., and Pete De Grasse, of New York, originally booked for last week. Sarron recently technically knocked out Johnny Datto in less than a minute at the Arena, and last Thursday night won over the Filipino again in 10 rounds at Birmingham.

Incidentally, Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Arena, plans four five-round preliminaries for his show next Thursday. Three of them already have been signed. Anson Green, Homestead Negro middleweight, meets Fritz Heinz, of Detroit; Joe Bazzone, of McKeesport, boxes Max Elling, of the Hill, and Harry Jacobi, new middleweight stablemate of Ted Yarosz, hailing from Newark, N. J., is in with Bill Nitch, of the North Side.

MULDOON, RING CZAR, DIES

The veteran sportsman, a noted expert on health methods, originator of the health farm idea and intimate of leading sports figures for half a century, succumbed shortly before 5 a. m. at his estate here.

Only nine days ago he celebrated his eight-eighth birthday. His first experience with a sickbed was three years ago when he fell from a horse. Later he recovered and announced he would "live for many more years," but the tell-tale ailments of old age began to take their toll, and on his last birthday he was confined to his home.

VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR

During his career Muldoon was a drummer boy in the Civil War, a former Greco-Roman wrestling champion of the world, ex-actor, and czar of boxing in this state.

He was a farm boy, sturdy and 15, when he enlisted for the war between the states. His next regular job was on the New York police force. From there he went to professional wrestling, which took him on a tour of the world, including the Orient.

Then came the business of training prizefighters. John L. Sullivan, Boston strong boy, was "tamed" by his stern methods at a time when the unruly Sullivan badly needed conditioning. The story goes that the taming process culminated in a rough-and-tumble in which Muldoon's wrestling skill convinced the boxer he had better behave.

When he left the boxing business and devoted himself to the health farm idea he became a millionaire. Presidents, bankers and titans of industries were numbered among his patrons and staunch friends.

"No tobacco, no drinks, plenty of exercise."

These were the rules at his establishment, and the mightiest of them had to obey.

PLAYED WITH BARRYMORE

During his stage career, he appeared with Maurice Barrymore, Rose Coghlan, Robert Downing and other stars, playing "strong man" roles in such vehicles as "Spartacus and the Gladiators."

A year ago Muldoon underwent an operation for an abdominal disorder, and lately he had been suffering from exhaustion brought on by warm weather and arthritis.

Since his eighty-eighth birthday last week Muldoon had slowly weakened. Early last evening his adopted daughter, Miss Margaret Farrell, said he suffered another "weak spell," which his doctor, Henry T. Kelly, described as a heart attack.

The veteran gladiator of the ring passed into a comatose condition, occasionally regaining consciousness for only a few minutes at a time.

Realizing that the end was near, Miss Farrell and Dr. Kelly remained with him until he died at 4:40 a. m.

After he fell from a horse three years ago, Muldoon required the constant attendance of a nurse. Miss Farrell, a practical nurse in White Plains, was assigned to Muldoon by Dr. Kelly. Two years ago she was legally adopted by Muldoon.

WILLIAM MULDOON . . . HE SUCCUMBED TO HEART ATTACK

Muldoon, New York state boxing commissioner, originator of the health farm idea and friend of athletic leaders for half a century, succumbed to a heart attack at his Purchase (N. Y.) estate at 4:40 this morning. This recent camera portrait of "the grand old man of athletics" is a Wide World News Photograph Service picture.

Detroit, White Sox Stage Hurler Swap

DETROIT, June 3.—(AP.)—Whitlow Wyatt, with the Tigers' pitching staff for several seasons excepting for a sojourn with Beaumont in the Texas League, has been traded to the Chicago White Sox for Victor Frasier, also a pitcher. No other consideration was involved.

Last season Wyatt won nine and lost 13 games. He has not been used much by the Tigers this season.

NEW YORKERS PRESS CARDS AND BUCS

Associated Press.

Although the end of the baseball season still is a long way off, it begins to look as if the New York Giants were about the East's only hope in the National League pennant race.

With Hal Schumacher and Bud Parmelee coming through in fine style, the mound staff has rounded into good shape and at times the Terrymen can give a very convincing demonstration of hitting the ball.

They showed how it is done yesterday when they hammered the Phillies into submission in two big innings to win 11 to 3 for their sixth straight over the tail-enders this year.

HUBBELL COASTS IN

Four Philadelphia flingers had a taste of the battering, which netted 19 hits, and although Carl Hubbell granted 14 blows he merely "coasted" through, tossing in nine strikeouts at the crucial moments.

The victory put the Giants within one and one-half games of the pace-setting St. Louis Cardinals.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves fought to a standoff in their doubleheader while the Western clubs all had an open date. Southpaw Ed Brandt, hurled the Braves to a 6-1 victory in the opener, giving only five hits. Ray Benge returned the compliment in a slightly less effective fashion to win his first victory as a Dodger, 7 to 2, in the second game.

TRIBE TIES NATS

The Cleveland Indians created something of an upset in the American League standing as they won two mound duels from the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 1 and 1 to 0. The double triumph sent Cleveland into a tie for second place with Washington, which downed the Boston Red Sox 8-3, while a 5-4 defeat at the hands of the league-leading New York Yankees sent Philadelphia's Athletics down into fourth place.

The fourth American League game saw the Detroit Tigers batter the Chicago White Sox into submission, 14 to 1, with a concentrated batting attack behind Art Herring's six-hit flinging.

Good pitching won both of Cleveland's victories as Oral Hildebrand bested George Blaeholder and Mel Harder beat out Bump Hadley on the strength of a pair of doubles by Dick Porter and Johnny Burnett in the first inning.

The flinging of Lefty Gomez was an important factor in the Yankee victory as he struck out 13 rivals, equaling the best major league mark this season. On the other hand, Mose Grove, essaying the relief role for the ninth time in 11 games, gave up a hit and a wild pitch in the eighth inning to let the tying and winning runs score.

The Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League, having suffered a complete washout a week ago and since straggled piecemeal through a portion of its original inaugural bill, crashes into action 16 teams strong this afternoon to furnish the Steel City area with its first really extensive racquet program of the season.

Following suit of their P. T. A. brethren, the Beaver Valley Tennis League likewise lifts the lid today, no less than 10 aggregations being slated to perform in the down-river sector. The new Allegheny-Kiski Valley loop holds its eight entrants idle till next Saturday.

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Just about a year ago at this time, Gene Sarazen was preparing very assiduously to win the British and United States open championships. This year he is doing his best to retain those titles, and, after looking over the field very carefully, it would seem that of all the high-class professionals both here and abroad the little fellow has about as good an opportunity as any to win.

In the first place, Sarazen probably is as well schooled in the various phases of golf as any man I have ever seen. Jones was a marvel at bringing his game up to a championship point when he most needed it. Sarazen, on the other hand, never gets out of form unless he deliberately wants to take a holiday from the game. He has grooved his swing to such a point that he seldom, if ever, hits a bad shot, and I call a bad shot one where a player is apt to run up a 6 or a 7 or some other figure that would ruin a good medal card.

Francis Ouimet

FAVORITE IN OPEN

I do not know anything about the North Shore Country Club, where our open championship will be played, but I do feel that Gene should be classed as the foremost player to win the British championship played this year, I believe, at St. Andrews. St. Andrews is an extremely tricky course. Regardless of how wind conditions are, one must play at least seven or eight holes against the wind, because, if it is favoring you going out, it is bound to be against you coming in, or vice versa. However, it is not the wind that is the greatest hazard at St. Andrews. There are many intricate shots and peculiar undulations that must be negotiated, and local knowledge is more valuable at St. Andrews than on any course I know.

I can remember a few years ago playing in a British amateur championship and winning my match on the twenty-first green in a manner that was most surprising to my opponent. St. Andrews was not well known to this individual, and, while he opened up a commanding lead for awhile, I could tell by the manner in which he played certain shots that he was not well posted on some of the features of the course, due to the fact that it was his first appearance there. After being 4 down and 6 to play, I managed to square the match and we set out for the extra holes. The first two were halved without incident, and we came to the third hole, the green of which is in a slight depression, and directly in front of the green is rather a high mound. While there was a trap guarding the left-hand side, one must take the risk of getting into this trap if he is going to shoot his iron shot at the hole.

RUN-UP SHOT MASTER

On this particular day, the flag seemed to be on the geographical center of the putting green. My second shot was a trifle strong and rolled a bit over the green. My opponent played what appeared to be a lovely shot. It had height enough, apparently, to clear the mound and land on the flat surface of the green and it was straight on the flag, and I was certain it was going to stop within a reasonable distance of the hole, and I was worried no little. However, I watched the flight of his ball very carefully, saw it come down and then, to my surprise, it kicked very sharply off to the right at right angles. It was one of the weirdest bounds I have ever seen, and left the poor opponent feeling very blue over such a piece of hard luck.

That incident is typical of the golf at St. Andrews, and it will be necessary for Gene Sarazen to overcome these things if he is to win. That he is capable of doing this I am sure because I feel he is a master of the stroke that is most powerful of all, and that is the run-up shot.

In 1930, when Bobby Jones won his British amateur championship, he did so because he outapproached all of his opponents with a running type of shot. On such occasions where a good pitch was the thing to do, he had little advantage, as a general thing, over fellows like George Voigt or Tolley, whom he defeated on the way to the title, but on the run-up shot he was supreme.

CHICAGO NINE PLAYS HERE

By TOM BIRKS

The Chicago Club, of the Negro National League, will meet the Pittsburgh Crawfords in a double header this afternoon at Greenlee Field, with the first game called for 3:45 o'clock. The same teams will meet in a league benefit fray at the same place tomorrow. The series will be concluded Monday with a night game.

The Crawfords won the first game of the series with the Giants at Akron yesterday, 4 to 1.

Homewood will meet the Ottie Cochran Club in a City League engagement this evening at Wilson Avenue Park. Joe Beggs has been assigned to pitch for the Perrysville aggregation. Stewart probably will get the Homewood assignment.

Tomorrow, the Parmelee Club, of the Greater Pittsburgh League, will switch its Sunday games to St. John's Lyceum field, Liberty avenue. The first attraction will be the Edgewood club.

The J. L. Thomas nine, Dormont and Books turned in victories in the City League last evening. The Bloomfielders defeated the Gillespies, 6 to 4; Dormont downed Whitaker, 6 to 2 and Books walloped Homewood, 10 to 2. The Cochrans, playing out of league competition, nosed out the Crafton Stars, 3 to 2.

O'BRIENS TO PLAY

The Morgan O'Brien Club will help the Schmidt Club dedicate its new field in Dorseyville tomorrow afternoon. Morgan O'Brien, sponsor of the club, will be on the mound. All O'Brien players are asked to meet at the clubhouse at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow.

POLOISTS IN BATTLE

The Charleroi Veterans will meet South Park in a polo match at South Park this afternoon and tomorrow.

PARKS PRESSES LEADERS AT ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 3.—(AP)—George Von Elm, of Akron, O., and Jimmy Foulis, of Chicago, today set out for the second day of battling in the $5,000 St. Paul Open golf tourney with a two-stroke lead over the field, which included some of the leading golfers of the nation.

Von Elm and Foulis started in where the big wind of Keller stopped yesterday to dominate the first 18-hole engagement. As the wind blew scores of many of the stars skyward and then suddenly relented, Von Elm and Foulis, the Illinois state professional champion, stormed into a first place tie with par-smashing totals of 70.

HAMBRICK THIRD

Archie Hambrick, long driving professional from Zanesville, O., finished third with a par 72 performance while five others, including Capt. Walter Hagen of the Ryder Cup team and one of his star freshmen, Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., landed close up with 73's.

With them were two St. Paul stars, amateur Lester Bolstad, of Big Ten Conference fame, and Len Mattson, pro of the Keller course, and Ralph Guldahl, of St. Louis.

Six others had 74's, Olin Dutra, of Los Angeles, National Pro title-holder; Harry Cooper of Chicago, winner of the St. Paul Open in 1930; Sam Parks, Jr., Uniontown, Pa.; Johnny Revolta, rising Menominee, Mich., star, and two Minneapolis players, Ernest Penfold and amateur Lee Herron, Minnesota open champion.

DIEGEL, DUDLEY FADE

Ryder Cup players Leo Diegel and Ed Dudley, two of the chief victims of the wind, were far back with 79's.

Parks, the former University of Pittsburgh star, who led the qualifying field for the National Open in the Pittsburgh district, was out in 39 and back in 35, tying with Von Elm for the best second nine tally of the day.

Prep School Meet At Shady Side Today

The sixth annual Tri-State Preparatory League track and field championships are carded at Shady Side Academy this afternoon, with Shady Side, Nichols School, of Buffalo, and University School, of Cleveland, competing.

University School has held the title for the past four years, Shady Side won the crown in 1927.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Folks often ask what us players do on rainy days. Well, we try to improve ourselves and keep our minds strictly on baseball like going to a picture show to watch Marlene Dietrich's legwork or looking for runs in Clara Bow's stockings or seeing all the Barrymores in a triple play. Personally, I even get hints from Mickey Mouse on how to improve my stuff.

Nick Altrock

You can not get a ball player's mind off his profession even when it rains. You will always find the boys scheming how to stretch a single order of pork chops into a second helping or how to lay down a nickel tip and beat it for home while the waiter's looking the other way.

We are just a big happy family, thinking of baseball 24 hours a day, and don't let anyone tell you different.

STOCKS MOVE UP IN HEAVY TRADING

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP.)—Stocks moved moderately higher in the early trading today with numerous blocks of 1,000 to 12,000 shares being transferred.

Industrials were steady to firm. Rails were also improved.

Union Pacific and Loew's firmed more than a point each.

Details of the conclusions reached in Berlin at the session of Germany's creditors indicated that the action to be taken was not a moratorium, as first reported in Wall street, but a suspension of the transfer of the service payments on the Reich's foreign private debts. As the financial community interprets the situation, the move is dictated by the Reichsbank's desire to protect its gold reserves. Free reserves of gold and foreign currencies still at the disposal of the Reichsbank have dropped to a low level, it was reported.

Because of the Memorial Day holiday, automobile production for the week ended June 3, as estimated by Cram, was approximately 40,484 units, a decrease of 12,076 from the previous week. Inasmuch as daily production schedules remained about the same, no other factor than the holiday was cited by way of explanation for the decline.

The dollar was slightly weaker in early dealings today. Sterling opened at $4.01½, an increase of 1¼ cents. French francs stood at 4.67 cents, a gain of half a point.

GRAIN VALUES TURN DOWN

CHICAGO, June 3.—Downturns in grain values early today followed reports that some provisions of the farm relief act would not be applied to this year's wheat crop.

There was also talk that until such time as inflation news became more decisive, a seasonal tendency to lower prices was likely to prevail. Opening unchanged to ½ off, wheat afterward sagged all around. Corn also started unchanged to ½ down, and then underwent a general setback.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP.)—Bank clearings again are somewhat smaller than those of a year ago. The total this week, at all leading cities in the United States, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., of $3,550,806,000 is 11.6 per cent below that of last year. At New York City, clearings are $2,542,284,000, a loss of 9.4 per cent, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,008,522,000 is 16.7 per cent smaller.

The week in both years includes only five business days. Allowing for this difference, bank clearings this week are relatively higher than for any preceding week of the past two months. It is unusual for bank settlements in the final week to exceed in amount those of the other three weeks of the month. Furthermore, the week a year ago included the heavier settlements incident to the opening day of June, which now makes the comparison somewhat uneven. The improvement over the preceding months this year is fully maintained by the latest figures.

Clearings at leading centers, compared with those of a week ago, showing decreases, are printed herewith, also, daily bank clearings for the year to date:

STEEL DEMAND RISING WITH OUTPUT

By B. E. V. LUTY

Demand for steel continues to increase and the rate of production to climb. With production of ingots this week estimated at 42 per cent of total capacity there is a particularly sharp increase for the week but in general the increase has been a steady one. This is the eleventh week following the low week, that of March 18, at 14 per cent. In six weeks there was a rise of 16 points to a 30 per cent rate, the last five weeks showing 12 points further gain, and an average of about 2½ points a week is shown for each period. The proportionate increase of course diminishes as tonnage rises. Thus a two-point rise from a 40 per cent rate is 5 per cent while from a 20 per cent rate it is 10 per cent.

By tradition the lowest time of year in steel production should be the first half of July and when demand increases to a date within four weeks of that period the steel trade is fully reassured and is convinced that if there is any summer recession at all it will be a very mild affair.

ACTIVITY CONTRA-SEASONAL

Several specific cases can be cited to illustrate how usual seasonal influences, acting for a decline in steel production, are largely lacking. On an average, tin plate production used to reach its highest rate by April, while this week there was the highest operating rate of the year for the tin mills, above 80 per cent, with prospect of further increase. The farm implement industry is expanding its programs at the time when usually it contracts. The average time of heavy automobile production used to be late in April, whereas this year production has been increasing to date.

Automobile production in May is estimated at 215,000 cars and trucks, United States and Canada, and approximately the same figure is forecast for June. Such production represents engagement of about 8 per cent of steel making capacity, and with steel production at 42 per cent of capacity the automobile industry is accounting for no more than one-fifth of all the steel, or less than it used to do at the heighth of its season. When so little steel is going for railroads, building and the oil and gas industry the automotive proportion could easily be larger than usual and thus it is evident that the new much-mentioned "miscellaneous" consumption of steel is doing very well indeed.

MAKING UP ARREARAGE

What has occurred and is occurring is in keeping with the theory entertained in the steel trade for nearly two years, after that had been thought was the point of "irreducible minimum" steel production had been passed and left far behind. Stocks of steel in mill form, of intermediate steel products and of finished steel wares were pared and pared, facilities of all sorts were allowed to run down, idle equipment being robbed of parts, and all around there was more actual ultimate consumption or wearing out than was represented by steel production.

Now the process is reversed whereby there is replenishment of stocks and repair of equipment. Many months more would be required for natural and reasonable stocks and facilities to be restored.

The thesis is fully supported by actual tonnage figures. According to a close reckoning it will not be until early next week that cumulative production of steel since January 1 will equal that in the same period of last year, and during that period the depletion referred to was proceeding. Making up of the large arrearage that was accumulating for two years is only in the initial stage. How fast it will proceed and how long it will require is another matter, about which it may be injudicious to venture predictions.

PRICES HOLDING FIRM

Finished steel prices are firm all along the line. General talk about prices advancing continues, but there is nothing specific for two reasons. One is control of industry legislation, which makes prospective costs of producing steel very vague. The other is recognition that some of the recent increase in steel demand may represent anticipation of higher prices for ultimate wares, for semi-manufactures and for steel mill products themselves and to put prices up to the full extent at once would make impossible, not merely discourage, such anticipation. The mills want higher prices more in connection with costs than profits as heavy operation is chiefly depended upon for the latter.

Steel Scrap Down 25c Per Ton Here

No. 1 heavy melting steel is now quoted $11.25 to $11.75, a decline of 25 cents a ton.

Despite the 25-cent decline, the scrap market here continues strong, and higher prices are still being anticipated.

NATION'S HEAD KEEPING EYE ON MARKET

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The Roosevelt administration is watching closely the trend of prices on the New York Stock Exchange. While there is no concern at the present time that the market is out of bounds with the development in industry and business, the feeling is that it is moving upward with considerable rapidity. The administration may find it expedient to take steps to caution against undue optimism if the developments indicate necessity for such action. It is considered an important duty to prevent any setbacks in the upward movement of business if possible and a break in the market of any consequence might result adversely to the present confidence of the country.

At the same time, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is disturbed by what he regards as the speculative rise in commodity prices. This rise, he has pointed out, interferes with operation of the farm relief act, particularly the provision aimed to take cotton lands out of production. In the opinion of the Secretary the rise is predicated on the expectation of certain steps under the act, but the rise itself may prevent the taking of these steps.

FLIGHT FROM DOLLAR

The administration has been advised that the large volume of stock market transactions is due somewhat to "flight of the dollar" into equities. This is due to the inflation movement and was expected to some extent. However, there is believed to be considerable professional trading with the "investment purchases." Professional trading could be checked by the operation of the Federal Reserve machinery by tightening money.

The administration, however, has not seen fit to do anything along these lines as yet. It would take considerable courage, it was said, to attempt to put the "brakes on" at this time but at the same time, it was declared it would be done if necessary.

CREDIT UNDER CONTROL

Administration advisors consider that the two most important developments in the administration's recovery program were first the bank holiday and the definite checking of deflation of the bank holiday and the reversal of the movement with the inflationary Thomas amendment and, secondly, the demonstration that the government controls the fiscal affairs of the treasury department. In respect to this latter, the adoption of the bill for maintenance of the credit of the United States, which was passed on March 20, placed in the hands of the administration the machinery with which to effect governmental economies. The power has been used to an extent that has demonstrated without doubt that the administration can completely control the outgo from the treasury.

AUDACIOUS GIRL REVEALS SECRETS OF SOUTHERN SEAS

For my delight, Skipper Watson and I wandered through the Chinese quarter of Kaewieng, where the adorable little slant-eyed, flat-faced youngsters played, as happily dirty as in any place in the world. Chinese youngsters are so irresistibly comical when they are very small. Their heads are completely shaven save for a black bang; they wear a nondescript romper-sort of garment, out of which the entire seat has been cut.

The only hotel in Kaewieng was Chinese. It was a long, one-story wooden building, decorated with ornate fretwork, and painted light-green and yellow. In the heyday of the German colony, when Kaewieng was an important center, the hotel had known gay and prosperous days.

But after the war, and with depression advent of the Expropriation Board, this died with the energy of the station. It had declined into the last stages of disrepair, and had been avoided by the white people of Kaewieng. So it had been chiefly supported by the Chinese and Malays, by halfcastes and such low-brow roughnecks as Bluey Errin.

As we reached it, however, much to Skipper Watson's surprise, it was in the throes of renovation. The Chinese landlord, with as yet unjustified clairvoyance, was making it over with an eye to attracting people of importance, possibly potential travelers on nebulous island tours. Partitions were being ripped out, the bar enlarged, and an electric icebox and its own small electric power plant were being installed.

GOES TO CLUB

All this was very pleasant, but the fact remained that I was a homeless waif. On our way to Chinatown, I had seen an empty bungalow which, I reasoned, could be made livable if all else failed.

So we wandered out of Chinatown, along a path strewn with sweet frangipani blossoms, to see what else there might be of Kaewieng. Despite the beautiful sea and the palm-fringed outlying islands, I sensed general decadence about everything. There was something about Kaewieng that I didn't like, though I couldn't account for the aversion.

The skipper suggested that I ight hire a room at the Expro ıb, where the few tag-end ers of the Expropriation ard put up. It was here that nters and their wives from lying islands stayed when y came into Kaewieng on siness or for a brief holiday m solitude. To this Bill Wat- and I directed our steps.

The club, once a prosperous ntation house, commanded a nificent view of the water, like most else in Kaewieng, d gone to decay. Watson oduced me to the Malay vard," and much to my relief greed to take me as a ier. Negotiations finished, Malay summoned two lap- ed boys and ordered: "Go ng ship along bridge and fetch 'im ologether something belong missus!" They replied in chorus: "Yessah!" They silently moved away down the road.

CLOTHING MISSING

It was well on in the afternoon when I finally got around to unpacking. I found to my horror that the chief article of luggage was not here, i. e., the box containing most of my wardrobe. The Bonta was probably on its way to New Britain, and the Lord only knew when stray luggage would be discovered and shipped back to me. The Malay, in accordance with my perturbed request, sang out to a boy to hotfoot it down to the bridge and see if the schooner was still there, and if so to rescue the box. He arrived just as the Bonta's engine was beginning to chug and so saved the day. Even in Melanesia one wants to look as presentable as possible—if one is a woman.

I was putting up in Kaewieng much as I had in Rabaul. I had no idea how long I should be there. I had thought that schooners came and went between Rabaul and Kaewieng, but I was all wrong; occasional schooners came and went between Rabaul and Kaewieng, but never touched there on the way to other ports. The island steamer, which stopped about once a month, had just departed. It looked like a month's sojourn.

I cast about hopefully to find what would keep me interested in this beautiful, stagnant outpost of the South Seas. And as I considered the situation I realized how deep my roots had grown into the associations in Rabaul; Dian, Nicki, Dian's atheist husband, who looked quizically and tolerantly at the world through thick spectacles, and for whom the world carried its tongue in its cheek, kind little Ah Chee, the Germans, I recalled them all with a homesickness that was steadily growing. Kaewieng's beauty oppressed me.

BEAUTY UNNOTICED

The white settlement consisted of about 30 "Europeans," of whom five were women. Of the 30, half were a floating population of recruiters, patrol officers, and what remained of the Expro officers. The Expropriation Board was in the process of handing over the last of the former German plantations to new purchasers, and was about to be dissolved.

As the days went by, I saw that these 30 individuals had nothing whatever in common nor tried to find a point of contact. It was appalling! Five women gathered together in the only white settlement on a savage island, and they never so much as left their respective verandas to talk to one another. As in Rabaul, they had become too used to the surrounding beauty to heed it any longer; even Nance Star—to whom I shall come directly—who had lived there for two years, had never walked along that marvelous white beach so thickly strewn with shells and mother-of-pearl that it looks as if there had been a cloudburst of bonbons. Kaewieng is the worst of the outstations for fever, which perhaps accounted for much of the listlessness.

As for the men, boredom could be drowned in beer at the Expro Club. And it was. Boredom and ambition, and any other emotions that had no outlet in this far-flung, enervating, fever-infested place.

Bill Watson had introduced me to Dan Star, who was attached to one of the trading headquarters near the beach. Star was an extraordinary handsome young man, with predatory eyes. He had once, obviously, had a magnificent physique, but already (he was not yet 30) he was getting soft and fat. His hands were long and beautiful.

VISITS SICK WOMAN

A few days after my arrival, Dan sought me out to say that his wife was not feeling well, and would I accompany him up to meet her. The Star bungalow was close by; it belonged to the trading company. It was a beautiful bungalow, on top of a rise, overlooking the wonderful harbor. As we mounted the veranda, an extraordinary fragile woman rose from a be-pillowed chaise longue. Though she was still young, she looked years older than her husband. She was just recovering from an attack of malaria, but she managed a wan smile of greeting.

As the days went by Nance Star and I got along famously, although it was a strange friendship that rarely hurdled a certain reticence. She was filled with malaria. But, worse than that, she was unhappy. Dan Star was an attractive man, an easy master, and an affectionate husband when he was sober. When he was not sober he was extremely difficult. And too often he was not sober . . .

And yet there would be very happy days, when Dan Star, humble and contrite, would hover about waiting to be forgiven. His wife, aching for tenderness, would open her arms and heart to him, and life would again, on the surface, be a serenely flowing affair. And the man would be so winning that I would like him again. At such times, catching each other's glance, Dan would look cheerfully embarrassed, evidently reading that I had not the slightest faith in his new role of regenerate and protector of weak women. But I was relieved that he was at least attempting the part.

FRIENDSHIP LASTS

Strangely, these devastating hurricanes and succeeding calms in the lives of the three of us out there did not make for strained relations, despite the fact that I was a stranger dropped from nowhere into their midst. We get that way in tropic surroundings; we take what the day or the hour offers and learn forbearance, because there is nothing else to do; learning, too, somewhat of compassion, because we are suddenly face to face with our own unsuspected frailties.

One day I wandered up to see Fritz, the little chap with the shiny golf clubs who had traveled up from Sydney on the Marsina months before. He was stationed at Kaewieng. I found him poring over a ledger on the veranda of his small bungalow. But time had wrought a devastationg change in Fritz. His spontaneous cheerfulness was gone; his eyes were no longer clear; his whole get-up looked careless. He was in the early stages, already, of the usual tropical degeneration. The golf bag was nowhere in evidence; it had doubtless gone to the limbo of other misbegotten illusions of the Pacific islands. I left him, feeling sorry, and I seldom saw him at all, for he kept almost entirely to himself.

JOHN KEPLER AND TYCHO BRAHE AT PRAGUE

Tycho Brahe (1546-1601), a Dane who advanced astronomy with his discoveries. Exiled from Denmark, he settled in Prague, where he met John Kepler (1571-1630), whom he taught astronomy and to whom he also left his papers and instruments. Kepler soon surpassed his teacher and in his great work, "Astronomia Nova," he expounded three laws, still considered basic in astronomy. Each was an important scientist of the Renaissance. THE WATER CYCLE (Chemistry)

In all living things water molecules form the greater part of the medium in which sugars, fats and proteins are dispersed. These molecules also contain O and H, the atoms of water. By decay and oxidation of living matter, water is formed again. Evaporation and precipitation make the cycle complete. (Burrell: Chemistry).

THE ELECTRON TUBE AS A DETECTOR

L, transformer; C, variable condenser; T, electron tube; A, battery supplying filament current; B, battery supplying plate current; and E, earphones. The alternating current in the aerial (at left) (generated by the incoming radio waves of 10,000 to 3,000,000 cycles per second) induces a secondary alternating current of the same frequency sent to the grid, G, of the tube, which assumes + or — potentials in succession. (1). Each time the grid is positive, it admits electrons from the glowing filament to the plate, causing a varying current in the plate-circuit. (2). Each wave-train of the plate current causes fluctuation in the telephone current (3), producing in the telephone a sound of a pitch (frequency of vibration) corresponding to the number of wave-trains per second. This must be between 16 and 40,000 per second to be audible. (U. S. Signal Corps: Radio Communication).

Bugs Baer

No Rollers for The Bug.

Roller skating fadness has struck New York and society is taking ankle excursions on eight spools.

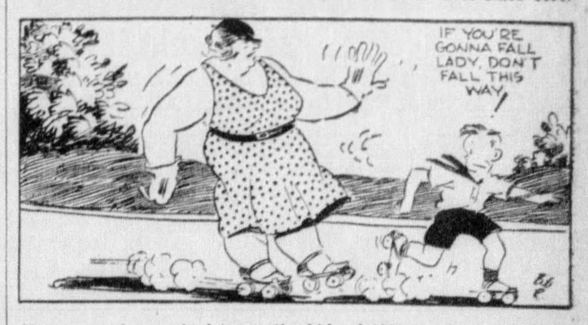
The scene of the contortions is the mall, Central Park, how have you been? The mall was formerly dedicated to children, birds, flowers, laughter and sunshine. It is now the lamentable arena for bustle falls, nose ricochets and busted toenails.

You are never too old to be fashionable. So all the dowagers and cotillion traffic directors are skating these mild spring days and enjoying themselves, so they say.

Picture a lady weighing 200 pounds, with a waistline like a panorama and a graceful poise resembling mutton on the hook. Put her on roller skates and she trundles off like a bureau on rusty casters.

It is supposed to reduce the silhouette. But constant sitting down on irresistible concrete will not reduce the figure. It will put it in a new place, that's all.

Sugar is the famous policeman who has been taking care of children in the mall for years. Sugar has been there since 1890.



He was much surprised to see the kids of 1890, coming back again. There were a few from 1834 he didn't know.

They've turned Sugar's outdoor playgrounds into an old folks' athletic club. And he can't do a thing about it. All he can do is look on and hope for rain.

A child on roller skates fits the picture. Her grandma on the same skates is a thing of beauty and a jolt forever. The writer has endowed 4,000,000 mental rocking chairs for oldtimers and one for himself. You can't compel the veteran athletes to remain seated.

After watching our contemporaries seeking to grab health by the handles we resign ourselves to the conning tower on the front porch. We shall look again and wonder. We have joined such fads as mah jong, backgammon and jig-saw pazussles. But we will take our roller skating in tablet form.

A Shrewd Politician

Mayor Herron Is Showing Deference to Public Sentiment. Brief Comment on Local News.

An astute politician, Mayor John S. Herron, about to come before the voters as a candidate in the primary, shows deference to public opinion in his denunciation of the racketeers and his warnings to the police force to arrest them. It is good politics as well as good morals to fight the racketeers, for a majority of the voters unquestionably would like to see them put out of business.

Mayor Herron's remarks yesterday about the arrests so far made in the clean-up were unexceptionable. He expressed disappointment that only unimportant small fry had been caught, and said the campaign could not be considered a success until the "big shots" responsible for the recent bomb explosions had been placed behind prison bars.

The Mayor's utterances tend to disarm suspicion. Notwithstanding that he did not lift a finger to stop racketeering during his years as president of Council, and not only that, but vigorously opposed the citizens' efforts to expose, punish and suppress racketeering in the Kline administration, many a voter must be asking himself if Herron has not experienced a change of heart.

Well, he is still considered a valuable member of Senator James J. Coyne's political organization, and there is no evidence that the racketeers have ceased to support the Coyne machine. As the campaign progresses, the political leanings of the underworld, as disclosed in the candidates' placards and the conversation in speakeasies and gambling houses, will show how seriously Herron's demand for a clean town is taken.

If the Mayor is 100 per cent in earnest, and in- tends to make a thorough clean-up and to keep the city clean, the underworld will be the first to sense it and to appreciate it, and there will be open and bitter hostility to Herron in quarters which are now friendly to him. Every decent citizen will hope, of course, that Mayor Herron fully means everything that he says.

The first arrest has been made in connection with the charges of cruelty to the child wards of the Juvenile [illegible] is encouraging that definite action has been taken. Too much has been said heretofore that was vague and indefinite. Let each case be considered on its merits. If evidence of criminality is presented, let the accused be prosecuted.

Additional complaints against the system under which the county's wards are placed in the care of private families are reported to be forthcoming. We hope that the County authorities will insist on clear-cut presentation of the facts and will fix the responsibility on specific individuals. Generalities are not yet in order.

The reports of cruelty to the children are almost certain to result in renewal of the demand that the county build and operate an institution for the care of the Juvenile Court's wards. But it is not to be forgotten that institutionalism has had a thorough trial and also lends itself to cruelty and other evils. The foremost social workers are opposed to putting children in asylums and orphanages, if there is any way to avoid it.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang an- nounces that 20 of the city's public swimming pools will be opened on July 1. These pools, with accommodations for a limited number of persons, serve a useful purpose. But how much better off we would be if we had a large swimming pool that could take care of thousands, and provide facilities for boating, besides!

Many of the largest cities of the United States, situated on or near the ocean or lakes, have an advantage over Pittsburgh in their superior facilities for aquatic sports. We have not made use of such facilities as we have. A committee of the Chamber of Commerce, headed by John M. Rice, consulting engineer, pointed out a few years ago how the community could obtain an aquatic park that would make Pittsburgh a far more attractive place in summer.

The plan is to construct a lake and wading pool in the valley of Squaw Run at the point, a mile or two above Aspinwall, where it empties into the Allegheny River, and to utilize the river at that point as well. This might well be adopted as a county project. There is a movement in some of the states to have state parks established near the large centers of population. The Squaw Run park might fit into such a scheme.

Commencement exercises will be held by a num- ber of colleges and schools in the Pittsburgh district next week. Hundreds of young men and women will be in search of jobs shortly afterward. It is to be hoped that if they do not succeed in finding them promptly they will not be content to spend their days in idleness while waiting. Better to return to college for post-graduate courses than to loaf.

The business outlook happily is much brighter than it was at commencement time last year. Railroad car loadings and industrial electric power consumption in the Pittsburgh district, good indices of commercial conditions, advanced this week to the highest points attained in the last two years. Perhaps this year's crop of school and college graduates will not have to wait long for jobs.

The war in China is made realistic by a photo- graph to be published tomorrow in the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, showing Chinese soldiers trying vainly to halt a Japanese drive at the Great Wall. Another interesting photograph shows Miss Margaret Elizabeth Laverty, of St. Kieran Catholic Church, after her election as Queen of the May, placing a garland on a statue of the Virgin Mary.

The American Weekly, issued as a supplement to the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, will have a notable article by Prof. Lucien Rudaux, the distinguished French astronomer, in tomorrow's issue. Prof. Rudaux discusses the mystery of the cosmic rays that bombard the earth. Some uncanny happenings in an English church form the subject of another fascinating article.

Puck, the Comic Weekly, another supplement of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, will be a treasure trove of fun and amusement. Jiggs is shown in another hilarious mixup in "Bringing Up Father." Boob McNutt, Tillie the Toiler, Barney Google and other favorites of the funnies also will provide much wholesome laughter for both grownups and children.

Who Gets Soaked?

By Nelson Harding

Who is getting soaked, and plenty,
In this very heavy downpour?
Who is left without protection,
With no refuge from the cloudburst?

Plainly it is not the person
Underneath the big umbrella,
He is sheltered from the deluge
And is getting all the "service."

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Not Important, If True

There were more marriages during the worst year of the depression than during the best year of prosperity." Misery loves company. Anybody will play around with you when you're on the up-and-up, but if you want somebody to share your troubles, you've got to have somebody TIED to you.

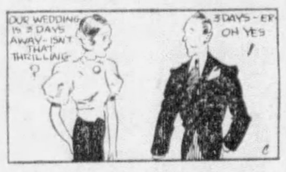
This is no time of year to choose a husband. When a girl's vanity needs a spring tonic, her common sense goes into a coma—and almost anything in the right dinner-coat looks like Heaven's answer to prayer.



No matter how little a girl may want to marry a man, the thought of the wedding thrills her—and no matter how anxious a man may be to marry a girl, the thought of the wedding paralyzes him.

* * *

Love is that perfect congeniality and mutual enthusiasm, which makes it impossible for two people ever to run out of conversation—and yet possible for them to be silent for hours, in each other's company, without ever feeling bored.

* * *

Every woman who can wear blue should feature it, this season. Blue lends any woman an aura of innocence and naivete which stills all a man's alarms and brings to life all his boyish illusions. He simply cannot think of a girl in blue as "dangerous."

If trousers and pipes ever are seriously adopted among women, no girl will need a conscience to keep her out of temptation.

Putting the sun-tanned, wind-blown, hard-muscled, modern girl into the styles of the Gay Nineties is about as effective as dressing a 12-year-old boy in his sister's clothes and expecting him to look coquettish.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 3.—My friend, a philosopher, urged a variation of routine as a mental perk. New York and its treadmill routine, he declared, has a way of jostling us into a corner. Now and then one should cast off the shackles. Do something different. So I left a call for 4 a. m.

The city at such an hour is a blue of grey-lilac. The people you see have expressions smudged with sleep. Even slinking cats have lost the thrill of vicarious romance. In the winey exultation of morning air I stood on a curb, gazing up and down the chasmed street.

A policeman somersaulting his night stick at the end of its leather loop sauntered around the corner. He approached with slight suspicion that seemed allayed by a casual glance, and moseyed on. A taxi unloaded a bewildered young couple at the Waldorf, across the way.

In making his turn, the driver winked and thumb-jerked toward them: "Just eloped to Greenwich!" They looked delightfully nuptial. New lives starting with a new day. As a stern partisan of reality, I wondered what the groom's salary was and how long before that first disillusioning quarrel!

* * *

Over by the side of Grand Central red caps were chirping in lively to and fro. One had been to a ball in Harlem. "Formalest you ever see," he was explaining. "Not even a tuxedo." In the great rotunda two sailors were propped against each other in sound snoring. A gentleman in bright, squeaky tan shoes puffing a cigar—and what a horrible hour to smoke!—was strolling up and down. Through a half-opened telephone booth a woman was shouting: "It's in the second drawer of the bureau. Mail it to me at Fall River. Goodbye!" Someone was yelling a train to Harrisburg, Altoona and Umfrayam—yaah. An attendant shook two weary casuals and they eeled toward train gates.

* * *

I'm one of life's innocents who cannot resist a weighing machine that catapults a fortune card upon registering weight. The beam quivered and came to a dead stop at 158, a gain of two pounds, and the card read: "You have remarkable talents for mechanics and inventions of all sorts." Extravagant eulogy for a mug unable to fill a fountain pen or insert a new typewriter ribbon!

* * *

There's a fascination in the arcade of cubicle shops chinked in disarray of a long tunnel. In a window of bright-jacketed books a card announces: "For laughs read Wodehouse. For romance, Kathleen Norris. For mystery, E. Phillips Oppenheim. But for peace of soul, Edwin Arlington Robinson." And bulwarked by such reflections I emerged into the early andante furiosa of brilliant hotels surrounding the station. Daylight streaked the skies.

* * *

American railroad stations should be more deeply appreciated. There is hurry, but not the feverish pluckings of other countries. Touts do not harry one, interpreters dog your steps or arch-rascals slyly flash pornographic postcards under their coat lapels. And where the world over may one behold the vaulted and azure depths of the Grand Central's starry ceiling?

* * *

The dull rose tint of the Murray Hill Hotel with its square and beautifully blue lamps out front is the back-log in the dying blaze of another day's aristocracy—an emotional nexus with crinolines, side-bar buggies and spanking bays. It's serenest in the shimmer of sun-up and its spacious and venerable lobby suggests the snap of ivory snuff-boxes and eyes behind the fan.

* * *

I tried to choose between breakfast and a barbershop. I blew hot at the prospective tingle of steaming towels and drifted for the first time in years into one across from the station. This was flirting with tonsorial gyppery—clip shops nestle near terminals—but I must have looked urban for the shave and massage was 55 cents. And I talked to a barber who is barbering to write. He has sold two stories to Adventure and a third has been seven weeks in a big magazine. Ominous sign!

* * *

Butter cakes sopped in maple syrup in the clattery and spontaneous let-go of a Child's. Served by a personable maid who said her first name was Agalda, one I never heard before. Home at 8, the surprised doorman's glance indicating: "On the loose, eh?" Anyway I varied my routine.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"I WANT TO LIVE!"

How often do you say that?

Not as often as you once did. When you were 16 or 17, something within you sang it like a song—all the time. When you were 20, 25—something in you shouted it like a challenge, night and day. But, after 30, the song grew dim, the shouting died away. You were too busy. Too worried. Or perhaps the world's din was too noisy in your ears.

Yet you've never entirely forgotten your longing to live. Really live. Not just work and play, eat, sleep, make love; but to really discover what life is all about—what you, yourself, are all about.

"Oh, I'm sick of living like a white mouse!" you cry rebelliously. "Doing the same things day after day. It's all so stupid. It gets one nowhere. Life must hold more than this. Life must hold wonderful experiences — feelings I've never dreamed existed — thoughts I've never dared think. If I could only LIVE!"

And you look enviously at those who you think have lived—the men and the women with the lined faces, the mysterious eyes, the strangely twisted smiles, who seem to have explored the secret places of the soul. If you could live as they have lived—live dangerously, dramatically—oh, then you'd be satisfied!

But would you be? I wonder.

There's a poem by Mary Whiteside—do you know it?

"Who has known heights and depths, shall not again
Know peace; not as the calm heart knows
Low, ivied walls; a garden close;
The old enchantment of a rose.
And though he tread the humble ways of men,
He shall not speak the common tongue again.

"Who has known heights, shall bear forevermore
An incommunicable thing
That hurts his heart, as if a wing
Beat at the portal, challenging;
And yet—lured by the gleam his vision wore—
Who once has trodden stars seeks peace no more."

"Who has known heights." Those who really live know heights, know depths. But at such a price!

What do they pay?

All those things which make life worth while for most of us.

FIRST OF ALL, COMFORT. You can never discover the heights or depths of life, and still hang on to your comfort, any more than you can climb Alps and still sit in a rocking chair. First, you'll get uncomfortable inside; then you'll be uncomfortable outside. None of your old thoughts will fit you any longer—none of your old prejudices or habits.

AND WITH YOUR COMFORT, WILL GO YOUR CONCEIT. For the moment you begin to search for wisdom, you're due for a bump. Instantly your self-confidence will vanish, for you'll see what a fool you are; and you'll enter into such humiliation and bewilderment as you've never known before.

AND THEN TO THAT THERE WILL BE ADDED LONELINESS. For people who really want to live are never popular, and the reason is plain—THEY MAKE LIFE UNCOMFORTABLE FOR ALL THE OTHER LAZY, TIMID, CONCEITED SOULS ON EARTH. So why should they receive applause for being a pain in the neck?

The answer is—they don't.

Yes, of one thing you may be sure. "Who has known heights and depths shall not again know peace."

That is the price of "really living."

The Famous Run of Old '999,' the World's Fastest Locomotive—Averill Harriman's Plan for a Speedy Train—Streamlined

By EDWIN C. HILL

JUST as the New York Central's famous old "999", the fastest locomotive that ever burned a record over steel rails, arrives at the Chicago exposition, young Mr. Averill Harriman prepares to build for the great Union Pacific Railroad a lightweight, streamlined passenger train guaranteed for 110 miles an hour and an average run of 90 miles an hour. And almost at the same moment the English claim the world's train speed record for their "Cheltenham Flyer," which has rattled off 77 miles between Swindon and London, over the Great Western Railway, at 81.6 miles an hour. And the Germans have entered the railway high-speed competition with their streamlined motor train which splits the breeze between Berlin and Hamburg at 76 miles an hour for the steady run of 180 miles.

Speed is the keynote of modern transportation, on sea and land and air, and the race is on among the cunning steamship, locomotive and airplane builders of half a dozen countries. But good old "999", reposing quietly in her stall at the Century of Progress Exposition, admired by thousands, can laugh at all these modern sea and land speed machines. They have a long way yet to go before they touch her record of 112½ miles an hour, made the day she snatched the Empire State Express from New York to Buffalo, May 10, 1893.

* * *

GRAY-HAIRED old engine drivers, yarning about the good old days, still talk about the wonder run "999" made between Buffalo and Batavia. And the engineer who drove her that blazing day is the same man who took her so proudly out to Chicago just the other day—Charley Hogan, Hogan of Buffalo. It was on May 9, as Charley Hogan tells the story, that "999" ripped off 102 miles an hour, jerking the Empire State in a black blur of speed from Rochester to Buffalo. But Charley Hogan felt sure that "the old girl" could shake a livelier leg even than that, so he gave her a good night's rest at Buffalo and slicked her up and took her out on May 10 and told her to do her best for the honor of the Vanderbilts and the Hogans.

* * *

A GREAT run, the greatest and most thrilling in the history of railroading. The Empire State Express flashed eastward like a runaway comet, but going with the smooth gait of a champion trotter and drawing smoothly behind her, in her comet's tail, the long train of Pullmans. Past Batavia fled "999" and then Charley Hogan let her out. Presently she was reeling off miles in thirty-five seconds, the Pullmans following her with velvet ease, scarcely a jar to the amazed and probably startled passengers. And then came the great mile, the world's record mile, made in thirty-two seconds, or at the rate of 112½ miles an hour.

* * *

IT MAY be many a long day before the great record of "999" is even threatened. The trains of today merely jog along at a modest 50 or 55-mile average clip, less than half the blinding, breathless speed of "999." The giant steam locomotives of the present day are not built to sustain such speeds as burned in the gallant heart of "999," and the rails of today are not built to sustain the grind and strain of 300-ton locomotives making 100 miles an hour. That is the reason. Mr. Harriman is trying something new in locomotive and train construction for the great continental line which his father developed and rescued from twin streaks of rust.

* * *

"THE Harriman Special" will be a light, streamlined train of three cars, built on lines borrowed from automotive and aircraft designs. The train will be made of aluminum or stainless steel. The cars will be tubular in shape, and they will be hinged together, as one continuous train. There will be a railway postoffice and baggage room and seating space for 116 passengers, together with dining car service. Tightly sealed windows will keep out the alkali dust of the western plains, and an air conditioning system will provide for pure air and coolness. Rubber will be used to kill noise.

There are tremendous possibilities in the experiment. Who knows but what it may revolutionize railway transportation, rendering obsolete the heavy, clumsy rolling stock of the present day, thus opening the way to gigantic new industries and restoring to the badly crippled railroads the prestige and a measure of the business taken from them by the automobile and the airplane?

Who knows, indeed, but what this present generation will see trains of the Harriman type carrying passengers from the Atlantic to the Pacific in two days, or less? That would require a speed of only about 70 miles an hour between New York and Los Angeles, and if ever the time comes—as it most certainly will come—when transcontinental passenger and freight carriers are able to convey their burdens over steel rails at an average speed or 100 miles an hour, it would mean that one could board a train in New York at 6 p. m. on Monday and arrive in Los Angeles, 3,200 miles distant, at 2 a. m. on Wednesday.

If good old "999" were a little younger, if her honorable joints were not so creaky, and if Charley Hogan could knock a few years off his broad shoulders, "the old girl" might take the rails today and rip it off from the Atlantic to the Pacific in just 28 hours. Think of that when you see her this summer in the Chicago Exposition!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

One of the worst bores is the one who insists upon talking when the one addressed indicates that he or she is in a hurry, or must give attention to other matters.

In visits to offices the greatest offenses of this sort are committed.

The man on a vacation, the unemployed, the one who has something to sell, are among those who impose upon the time of the man at work in his office.

Some salesmen evidently think that an order will be given to get rid of them if they can be persistent enough.

In easy money days this might have been true occasionally, but not now.

The insistent, persistent salesman irritates, and the longer he talks the farther he is from a sale.

Friends should not stop in a place of business for a little chat or visit.

Time is important.

More time to study requirements and plan for procuring business is necessary.

Those in executive positions are not in the mood for small talk or to discuss subjects foreign to their line of business.
